

Two Persons Killed, 40 Hurt in Pair of County Accidents

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

At least two persons were killed and 40 others injured today in two separate accidents involving 13 vehicles on the ice-slicked Ulster County section of the New York State Thruway.

Both crashes occurred between 7 and 8 a.m. today during a dense fog, within 18 miles of each other. Thruway authorities reported.

One fatality was reported by police in each crash.

The 7 a.m. incident, involving a chartered bus from a school district in the Long Island community of New Hyde Park, occurred at milepost 80, near the Modena Service Center south of New Paltz.

Thruway police said the bus, chartered from the Orange and Black Lines, contained close to 40 teenagers traveling to the Catskill Mountain region for a ski weekend.

The 8 a.m. crash occurred at milepost 97 near the Ulster Service Center south of the Saugerties interchange.

Authorities reported that at least ten autos and two tractor-trailer trucks were involved in the chain reaction crash.

Two persons were pronounced dead on arrival at Benedictine Hospital. Their names are being withheld pending notification of next of kin. None of the dead or injured were from Ulster County, authorities said.

Kingston Hospital authorities said they treated about 35 persons who were passengers on the chartered bus. Most were treated for minor injuries and released, but several were admitted for serious injuries, it was stated. All were teenagers, the spokesman said.

Police said the bus was traveling northbound when it skidded on the slick pavement and overturned, pinning several of the occupants inside. One person was ejected from the vehicle. More than ten ambulances from as far away as Newburgh were called to the scene to transport the victims to the two Kingston hospitals.

All emergency vehicles from Doctor's Ambulance, Fatum's Ambulance and Saugerties Ambulance assisted at the scenes of the two accidents.

Details of the chain reaction crash near Saugerties were not available, but State Police said at least 10 cars and two trucks were involved. Fatum's Ambulance reported they transported seven persons to Kingston Hospital from that crash.

The Thruway was closed between the Saugerties and New Paltz interchanges for more than 90 minutes this morning as police and Thruway work crews attempted to clear all the wreckage. Both lanes of the superhighway were blocked as a result of the Saugerties area crash.

A spokesman for the Communications Division of the New York State Thruway Authority said the superhighway was reopened to traffic at about 10 a.m.

State Police from Kingston said that the highway was a "sheet of ice" and termed road conditions early this morning throughout Ulster County as "extremely hazardous."

Second Walk on Moon A Success, But . . .

Hikers Can't Hit Crater Top

'THUMBS-UP'—Astronaut Eugene Cernan, backup commander for Apollo 14, gives a "thumbs-up" as the Apollo 14 astronauts leave the lunar module for the crew's second trip to the surface of the moon. Cernan was with flight controllers in Mission Control Center during the landing and excursion by astronauts Edgar Mitchell and Alan Shepard. (NASA PHOTO VIA UPI TELEPHOTO)

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 14's short-of-breath lunar explorers struggled up the steep slope of a crater today and chipped off clues to the birth of the moon. But the disappointed hikers had to turn back before reaching the rim.

But, Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell obviously had recovered by the time they returned to the lunar lander Antares.

The second moonwalk by the third team of Americans to land on the moon lasted 4½ hours and was "a great success" scientifically. Shepard and Mitchell found a mile-wide expanse of boulders bigger than trucks and chipped off samples which may equal the 4.6 billion year age of the moon.

The third member of the Apollo 14 crew, Stuart A. Roosa, waited in orbit 70 miles overhead while his colleagues completed man's first exploration of the lunar uplands. They were to join him in midafternoon and all three will breakaway from moon orbit and head back to earth at 8:38 p.m.

Man's longest hike over the dusty lunar surface was spoiled for Mitchell, 40, and Shepard, 47—who fell to his hands and knees once while slogging uphill—when they failed to reach the top of 400-foot high Cone Crater.

But Dr. Robin Brett, space agency geologist, said the astronauts' two moonwalks were "a great success."

Ground controllers ordered the lunar explorers to head back to Antares when they were three-fourths of the way up the side of the crater and obviously uncertain about exactly where they were or how far away the rim was.

"I don't think we have time to go up there," said Shepard, who was dragging a rickshaw-like cart up the steep hillside.

"Ah, let's give it a whirl," Mitchell protested. "Gee whiz, we can't stop without looking at Cone Crater. It spoils everything if we don't get there."

Despite the unexpected difficulty of their climb and the deceptiveness of lunar distances, Shepard and Mitchell reached the giant boulders which were the chief scientific goal of Apollo 14.

Mitchell said the field of brownish-gray, truck-sized boulders covered a square mile. But he said one was "definitely white in color, a very definite difference in color."

The astronauts chipped samples from the huge rocks that scientists think were blasted from the original lunar crust when a meteoroid slammed into the moon and dug Cone Crater. They may date back to the moon's birth 4.6 billion years ago.

"I chipped off one of the white rocks," Mitchell said. Brett said the astronauts apparently will bring back a much wider range of rock samples than Apollo 11 and 12.

But he said experts were "disappointed" the astronauts didn't reach the rim to take photos and roll the stone down its steep inside slope.

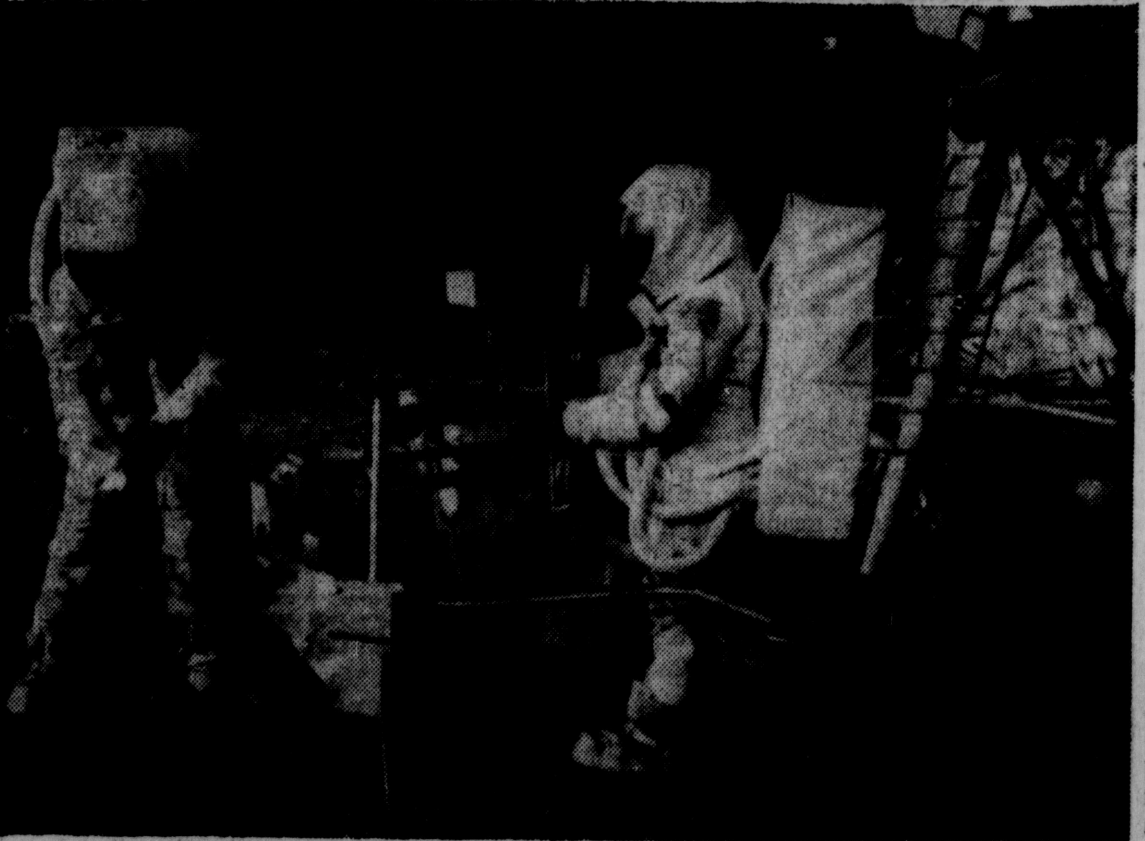

Shepard and Mitchell were surprised by the difficulty they had struggling up the dusty gray slopes. They had predicted after Friday's four and three-quarter hour moonwalk that they'd be able to reach the rim "without any trouble at all."

Eager to get started, they began their hike more than two hours early. But they quickly discovered it was almost impossible to estimate distances and that the crater's slope was steeper than it looked from below.

Shepard's heart rate shot up to 150 beats per minute—compared with a high of 113 during Friday's dramatic landing. Mitchell's heart rate reached 128. The temperature inside the moon suits climbed into the high 80s.

The explorers climbed one ridge they thought led to the crater rim, only to reach the top and find they had been "fooled."

Scientists Await Lunar Lander Crash

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 14 lunar lander Antares will create the first manmade moonquake to be recorded by two seismometers when it is sent crashing into the highlands of Fra Mauro.

It is expected at 7:43 p. m. EST today after astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell use Antares to take them up from the moon to the orbiting command ship Kitty Hawk.

Crashes of discarded boosters and spacecraft on earlier flights have been recorded by only one seismometer—the instrument left by the Apollo 12 crew in the Ocean of Storms in November 1969.

Scientists expect far more useful data from Antares' impact since they not only will know where it crashed, but can compare the seismic waves recorded by the new Apollo 14 seismometer with the Apollo 12 instruments' readings.

The new seismometer is part of a nuclear-powered science station Shepard and Mitchell set up Friday several hundred feet from Antares at Fra Mauro.

Shortly afterward, the station began radioing data to earth from instruments that included the seismometer, gauges that measure charged particles in the lunar atmosphere and geophones that record small seismic waves in the lunar material just beneath the surface.

Antares was targeted to impact midway between the two seismometers, which are 107 miles apart. The impact point is at the transition zone between the flat mare area of the Ocean of Storms and the rolling hills of the highlands where Shepard and Mitchell landed.

Seismologists hope seismic waves from the crash will locate the primitive lunar crust some scientists believe underlies the highlands. Previous crashes in the Ocean of Storms have failed to locate the crust.

Operation of two seismometers is a long-awaited key to studying moon's interior, said Dr. Gary Latham of Columbia University, principal investigator for the seismometer experiments on both Apollo 12 and Apollo 14.

Latham hopes the two stations will answer an intriguing question about natural moonquakes first detected by the Apollo 12 seismometer. The quakes are located near the Fra Mauro crater in the area of a series of hills, or valleys.

15-Handicapper on Earth Tries Sand Shot on Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Alan B. Shepard, a 15-handicapper on earth, became the first golfer on the moon today, hitting two six-iron shots on the Fra Mauro Valley Country Club, the solar system's biggest sand trap.

"I'm going to try a little sand trap shot," Shepard said, taking out a golf club made especially for his moon flight by the pro at the posh River Oaks Country Club near his home.

Jack Harden, the pro, said Shepard could hit a six-iron shot 135-140 yards on earth and that should be about 800-900 yards on the moon because the ball would travel six times as far in the one-sixth lunar gravity. It would be more difficult to swing in the bulky space suit, but the lack of atmosphere makes movement easier, compensating for the binding clothes.

The pros at the Manned Spacecraft Center would not guess on the distance.

Like many Saturday golfers, Shepard missed his first shot, getting only moon dust. But he hit the next two.

Harden said Shepard "could play a pretty good game of golf if he wanted to, but he didn't play very much."

It was impossible to pick up the flight of the ball on television, but after the second shot Shepard looked down the valley and said:

"Miles and miles and miles. After the first shot, Capcom shot 135-140 yards on earth and that should be about 800-900 yards on the moon because the ball would travel six times as far in the one-sixth lunar gravity. It would be more difficult to swing in the bulky space suit, but the lack of atmosphere makes movement easier, compensating for the binding clothes."

The pros at the Manned Spacecraft Center would not guess on the distance.

"Like millions of Americans at this time, I'm an astronaut watcher," the President said, "and the picture is coming in the well. He added that the participation of many thousands of other persons made it possible for the astronauts to land on the moon."

Nixon relayed his message to the moon by telephone to Donald K. Sleyton, director of flight crew operations at mission control in Houston. Nixon had watched the moon exploration on a television set in the office of deputy assistant Alex Butterfield in the office adjoining his own at the White House.

Nixon also extended an invitation to the astronauts and their wives and children to spend a weekend at Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland, following recovery.

Shepard's answer to the President's message was "Thank you very much and we appreciate those kind words."

Ronald Zeigler, White House press secretary, also read a message from the President, terming the moon landing "a thrilling event for humanity."

The statement continued, "I congratulate the astronauts and the thousands of other dedicated people who helped make this awesome achievement possible."

"I join with all Americans in wishing the astronauts well as they carry out their mission on the moon and wish them God-speed for a safe and successful return to earth."

Lutheran Pastor Gets Synod Grant

KINGSTON

The Rev. Alvin F. Messersmith, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Kingston, has been notified by the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Lutheran Church in America that he has been awarded a 1971 grant from the synod's Samuel Trexler Fellowship to attend the Wagner College Institute in Bregenz, Austria this summer.

Named after and established by a late president of the MNY Synod the purpose of the fellowship is to make funds available so as to provide fellowships to ordained ministers of the Metropolitan New York Synod for advanced study in America or in other countries, in order that they might increase their knowledge and value in the ministry of the Lutheran Church.

"The fellowships are not primarily to equip professional teachers with required degrees, but to develop within the ranks of the church, pastors and leaders with an ecumenical vision, an adequate knowledge of Christian thought, and an understanding of the church at home and abroad."

The Rev. Mr. Messersmith recently moved to Kingston from West Camp where he had been pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church since June 1955. He will observe the 25th anniversary of his ordination on March 3.

New Pastor Assumes Post At Fair Street

KINGSTON

The Rev. Randall B. Bosch, new pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church will conduct both worship services starting this Sunday. There will be identical services at 9:30 and 11 o'clock, with the full senior choir singing at both services.

The Bosch family arrived from Mt. Prospect Ill. last weekend and are residing on Kerry Lane.

Fair Street Church has been without a permanent minister, since last September, those who attended worship have had an unusual opportunity to hear many preachers, of varying backgrounds. Rev. A. G. Bossenbrook, Field Secretary and Minister-at-large of the Synod of New York Reformed Church in America, filled the pulpit during the Advent season, ending with his presiding at the installation and ordination services, for new consistorymen on Jan. 3. Other men of note in the Fair Street pulpit were Dr. Norman Edwin Thomas, dean of the Seminary in New Brunswick, N.J., and Dr. Vernon H. Kooy, a prominent member of the faculty of that school. Also many seniors from the class at the Seminary supplied the pulpit with outstanding messages.

Wednesday, the congregation and friends of Fair Street Church are invited to a roast beef dinner to informally welcome the Rev. Mr. Bosch, his wife, Carol, and children, Phil, Katie, Paul and Steve. This event will also be a means of thanking elders and deacons who have served on the governing body of the church for a three year period, and who are now eligible for Greater Consistory. The Consistorymen being honored this evening, are: Melvin Lafferty, as senior elder and William Boyle; LeRoy Porter, as chief deacon, and Harry Hults, and George Antonietti. Reservations are requested for this dinner.

Saugerties Reformed, the Rev. Orville Jay Hine, pastor - Worship 10 a.m. Sermon, Release from Anxiety. Sunday school 10 and 11 a.m.

Union Center Community, Ulster Park, the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, pastor - Worship 10 a.m. Sermon, Divine Power in Growth. Sunday school 11 a.m.

Rockefeller Seeks State Support For Federal Revenue Sharing Plan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller asked mayors, county executives and congressmen from New York State today to mobilize public support of a lobbying effort to persuade Congress to enact a $10-billion federal revenue-sharing plan. The Republican governor also declared Feb. 22 as "Federal Revenue Sharing Day in New York State." He suggested in letters to local officials that the day be used "to focus public attention on the fiscal problems facing your community and to make clear why revenue sharing is essential to solve them." The amount sought by the governor is double the amount proposed by President Nixon for a federal revenue-sharing program. "Under the president's $5 billion proposal, for example, New York State, on a full year basis, would be allocated approximately $500 million, slightly more than half of which would automatically be passed through to local governments in the state," he said in letters to local officials.

However, the fiscal needs facing governments all across the country are of such magnitude that, in any judgment, an initial $10 billion of new money for revenue sharing is an absolute necessity—and this would mean $1 billion for New York State. He estimated that of the $1 billion for New York State, the local governments would receive more than $549 million. They would receive about half that amount under Nixon's recommendation, he said.

Rockefeller gave these estimates of what cities would receive under a $10-billion federal revenue-sharing program: Albany $2,198,000; Auburn $550,000; Binghamton $1,812,000; Buffalo $9,688,000; Elmira $440,000; Endicott $660,000; Freeport $384,000; Garden City $440,000; Hempstead $550,000; Jamestown $878,000; Kingston $384,000; Lackawanna $494,000; Lockport $604,000; and Long Beach $550,000. Also, Mount Vernon $1,154,000; Newburgh $440,000; New Rochelle $1,648,000; New York City $378,614,000; Niagara Falls $1,592,000; North Tonawanda $384,000; Poughkeepsie $604,000; Rochester $6,762,000; Rome $604,000; Seaford $384,000; Schenectady $1,164,000; and Syracuse $4,668,000. Also, Troy $768,000; Utica $714,000; Watertown $440,000; White Plains $1,318,000; Yonkers $4,668,000. All other cities and villages would divide $10,456,000. Rockefeller said the funds would be given to the local governments with no strings attached.

Esopus Apartment Complex... Three-Year Delay Predicted

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

PORT EWEN
The early spring start of a $3 to $5 million 668-unit apartment complex is in doubt and there might be a delay of about three years with the possibility that the Aero Lake site may be eliminated from consideration. The bombshell was delivered in a letter from Vincent Doce Associates to Esopus Supervisor

George H. Freer, read at Thursday night's Town of Esopus Planning Board meeting. The letter from Doce Associates said they have "placed all further consideration in abeyance" and are considering building the showcase project at one or two other sites other than Esopus, according to a report from Thomas Johnson, secretary of the Planning Board. The Doce letter said the shopping center developer, also planned for the apartment complex, has withdrawn his offer pending further developments and may forfeit his contract entirely. Doce Associates claimed in the letter that there was a lack of communication between town officials and the land developers of Newburgh, Vincent Doce, president of the firm, said. Doce said that his firm had purchased the site through the brokerage firm of Ralph S. Risio of Newburgh, in the month mentioned in special session to discuss extension of Port the project was first revealed last year on the lands formerly known as Kingston Aero Park and Camp SAAC at Port Ewen. Doce at that time revealed that his firm had purchased the site through the brokerage firm of Ralph S. Risio of Newburgh, in the month mentioned in special session to discuss extension of Port ment housing was signed with Shelter Realty Inc., of Madison Avenue, New York City. The development was proposed for a 400-acre site and would include a shopping center and garden apartment complex. Early in January the Esopus Town Board and the Planning Board had given the project tentative approval pending further study. The Town Board later in the month mentioned in special session to discuss extension of Port

Ewen Water District to include the development. The Planning Board also had some good news at its organizational meeting. Reports were presented indicating that a 900-acre riverfront property owned by a well-known religious order is now available for commercial development. The name of the property owner, known by members of the Planning Board, was not revealed publicly.

In other business, the Planning Board received a plan from Esopus Development Corp., for construction of 49 homes in the $25,000 class off Pokonkie Road in New Salem and the board gave tentative approval to the plan map. Supervisor Freer called the proposed 60-acre development to be known as Lake Side Park Acres, another step in the direction of organized growth and progress.

Town Attorney Louis Klein, who has been amending the proposed town zoning regulations, presented the new trailer ordinance addition which he described as "the strongest possible zoning recommended for the town." The Planning Board unanimously reelected Chester DuMond Jr., as chairman and Johnson was named to the post of secretary.

College Leaders Set Panel On Undergraduate Studies

NEW PALTZ
Panelists from colleges throughout the mid-Hudson Valley will discuss under division undergraduate study opportunities in this area at the annual winter meeting of the Mid-Hudson Council for Continuing Education Tuesday at the State University College here. Jules Viglielmo of Woodstock, president of the council, noted that much interest has been shown in mid-Hudson communities by various groups and individuals in developing further undergraduate opportunities. "This meeting is an attempt to determine whether or not there is a need for, and the ramifications of, such a program," said Viglielmo. Following the 7:30 p.m. panel discussion, another discussion will be held to assess the availability of graduate programs and prospects for their growth in the area. The meeting will be held in the Tenth Floor Lounge of the Faculty Tower Building on the New Paltz campus.

Panelists for the meeting will be: Dr. Robert C. Davidson, director of Continuing Education, SUNY at New Paltz; Brian Desilets, director of the Evening Division, Marist College; Dr. Armen G. Fisher, director of Union College, Vassar Extension; Dean Sister Marie Genevieve, Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh; Prof. Glenn M. Glasford, academic chairman, Poughkeepsie - Kingston Center of Syracuse University at IBM; Kurt Beck, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, Vassar College; Dr. Richard F. Klux, chairman of the Graduate Division, SUNY at New Paltz; and Dean Selinger, Bard College.

A cocktail "half-hour" at 7 p.m. will precede the meeting.

Mohawk Discussing Possible Merger

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Spokesmen for strike-bound Mohawk Airlines and North Central Airlines confirmed Friday the two carriers have been discussing merger possibilities, but both spokesmen minimized the changes for a link-up. "We have been continually studying merger possibilities with other carriers, North Central among them," said a spokesman at Mohawk's headquarters. He denied that Mohawk was involved in serious discussions with any company. Daniel May, vice president and treasurer of the Minneapolis-based North Central, said his airline had discussed merger with Frontier, Ozark and Mohawk.

May added that he considered Mohawk the least likely merger partner of the three. "There is nothing firm at this time," he added. Mohawk's operations were halted Nov. 12, 1970 when nearly 400 pilots began a strike over a contract dispute. Some 87 points in 12 states and Canada have been without Mohawk service ever since. North Central's flights cover the upper Midwest, linking that area with New York City, Kansas City, Toronto and Denver. Its fleet contains 15 DC-9 jets and 34 Convair 580 prop jets. Mohawk, the nation's largest regional carrier, has 30 BAC 111-Fan Jets and 17 FH-227 prop jets.

Central Hudson Thanks You!

February 6, 1971

To Our Customers:

This letter is to tell all of you, and as promptly as possible, of the very real contribution you have made during the past week to the security of electric service in the Hudson Valley. In answer to our personal and radio appeals, your voluntary reductions of electric use have been a significant factor in keeping the total demand on our system within our ability to provide continuous service.

All of us at Central Hudson express to you our thanks and appreciation.

Beginning in January a number of coincidental factors have created acute electrical supply problems not only in the Valley, but in the State as a whole and in the northeastern part of the country.

There has been, of course, the extremely cold weather, and the resulting exceptional home, store and office heating requirements.

In our own system, the largest electric generator at our Danskammer Point Plant, which normally provides nearly 38% of our total generating capacity, had to be taken out of service. This was required in order to replace a cracked shaft on a large fan which provides draft for the boiler, and in order to replace turbine blades in the turbogenerator. All of this work should be completed next week.

In the interconnected system from New England to Washington, D.C., and into the middle west, many companies have experienced plant shut-downs, in full or in part, for reconstruction or emergency maintenance; reserves, which under normal circumstances have been deemed ample, have proved barely adequate; and of course the special problems in New York City have been well publicized.

Under these circumstances, even the vital transmission line networks and the close cooperation of all members of the New York Power Pool have been insufficient to meet the needs of the State and, specifically, to provide you with your full electrical requirements. The 5% voltage reductions on a number of recent days, generally at least state wide, have served to reduce overall demands to a degree that, supported by your own cooperation, there have had to be no general service interruptions.

With the return to service next week of our principal generating unit at the Danskammer Point Plant, and with further contractual deliveries that we have arranged to tide us over the periods of conversion from coal to low-sulphur oil fuel of our smaller generating units at Danskammer, we have every confidence that our own capacity to supply your needs will be adequate for the near future; although it may well be that further periods of voltage reduction will be required from time to time in order to assist other systems faced with critical situations. For the longer future new plants and transmission lines, such as the plant being built at Roseton and the 345,000-volt transmission line being built west of the Hudson River, will be essential.

This letter is in part an explanation of what has been happening in recent days; it is in part a look to the future; it is primarily an expression of how you, our customers, have helped, and of our thanks for your help.

Sincerely yours,

Central Hudson Gas &amp; Electric Corporation

Police Arrest Two Juveniles

KINGSTON

Two Kingston juveniles were arrested after a two-hour foot chase with State Police from Lake Katrine and charged with first degree grand larceny after they allegedly stole a car from Kingston.

Sgt. H. S. Rhodes told The Freeman that the two reportedly stole the vehicle in Kingston at about 9:30 p.m. Friday. An ensuing auto chase between the youths and police ended shortly after when the car crashed into a snowbank near the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge. The juveniles, said police, took off on foot and were chased by several troopers through the wooded areas of East Kingston. They were finally collared around 11 p.m. on the porch of a home in East Kingston. The two juveniles, aged 12 and 15 years, were released in the custody of their parents pending a family court hearing on the grand larceny charge.

Woodstock Man Is Arrested

WOODSTOCK

Douglas Johnson, 30, of 28 Pine Grove Avenue, Woodstock was arrested Friday morning by Kingston State Police, on warrant issued by a Liverpool (N.Y.) police justice charging him with fourth degree sale of a dangerous drug and fifth and sixth degree possession of narcotics, police reported.

Johnson was transferred to the State Police sub-station in Liverpool for arraignment proceedings. The Woodstock resident was named on the arrest warrants along with several other persons residing near Syracuse who were picked up in the extensive drug raids conducted Friday, by State Police.

Eight Teachers Pay $200 Fines

KINGSTON

Eight Ulster County Community College professors who took part in a two-day strike over salaries, have paid fines of $200 each to the office of the County Clerk.

Convicted of contempt of court charges last Monday, the eight had until noon Friday to pay the fines which also included a $200 charge to the Ulster County Community Faculty Association.

Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn levied the fines on association president, Richard C. Smith; secretary, Robert Buntz; treasurer, Edward Peller; Allan Duane, Richard Katims, David Kibler, Theodore Deitz and Keith LaBude. Final action on the salary contract between the county and the Faculty Association is reportedly imminent. It calls for a 15 per cent increase in salary the first year and 10 per cent the second year. The faculty had sought a 28 per cent increase.

Castillo Unloads 286 in Merchants

SAUGERTIES—Kingston area this season, and a closing 218 for a 613 series. Little did Angelo Castillo, a 165 average bowler, realize what would happen after that crazy 123 opener in this week's session of the Saugerties Merchants league.

Well, a lot happened. Like a 286 solo, fourth highest in the

Saugerties Women Slate Annual Tourney in April

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties Women's Bowling Association has announced dates for its 14th annual spring tournament at the Bowlers Club. The team event will be rolled Sunday, April 18, with singles and doubles on Sunday, April 25. Mrs. J. J. Pawlows, SWBA secretary and tournament director, announced.

Entries will be limited to current members of the Saugerties association and to women who may belong to other bowling associations near Saugerties but who regularly bowl in a WIBC-sanctioned league in Saugerties. The tournament will be a handicap event, whereas the 1969-70 tourney was a classified type, with entries bowling in divisions determined by averages, Mrs. Pawlows said. Entry blanks will be available at the Bowlers Club starting in late February through April 5 when entries close. Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

Kearney's 632 Paces New High

KINGSTON—Pete Kearney's 632 series, with a 620 assist from Pete Saulpaugh, enabled Union Hose No. 2 to set a new team series record with 2748 in the Volunteer Firemen's League.

The team sets were 896, 929 and 923. Kearney had highs of 220 and 229, while Saulpaugh decked 223-245 after a 160 opener. Else-

UCCC Hosts Nassau Five

KINGSTON—It may be tough to accept, but Ulster County Community College Senators are in the midst of a mediocre season. Oh, 11-8 may not be so bad by the standard of those used to less, however. U-Tri-C followers have known nothing but huge success from Mike Perry-coached quintets in recent years and the current record is probably a disappointment to most.

UCCC has a chance to pick up another victory tonight in Kate Walton Field House at 8 p.m. against Nassau Community but the visitors are going to be tough.

Boasting a 10-4 mark to date, Nassau coach Michael Candel doors a small, disciplined team which has been one of better defensive fives in the nation. The Long Islanders have knocked off the likes of Westchester (by three points in overtime) and Dutchess (by 20 points) and they only happen to be tied for the mid Hudson Conference lead for which Ulster trails by two and a half games.

Two of the Nassau losses were to teams that have already taken the measure of the Senators: New York City Community and Farmingdale.

Horace Brawley, a 6-2 guard, is the leading scorer for Nassau with just over 18 points per game. His partner in the Long Island backcourt is 5-11 Frank Lukasiewicz. Up front Nassau has 6-3 Dwight Adams, 6-4½ Bill Hardy, and 6-2 Jim Luchsinger. "We play a controlled game, looking for the best shot," said Coach Candel. "The fact that we don't run and the other team doesn't get the ball as much contributes to our defensive record."

Candel doesn't plan on changing anything against Ulster. "We don't vary our game against anybody. We do what we do and if the other team beats us, they beat us." Senator Coach Perry will try to combat the Long Island team by using a man-to-man defense. He has four men scoring in double figures — Glenn Berry, Cliff Weeks, Roger Govantes, and Gary McDonald — and most hope for them to be on for UCCC to win. The Senators have shown that they can hit for a phenomenal percentage. Unfortunately it has been phenomenal both ways.

Following tonight's game, Ulster hosts Sullivan, cellar dwellers in the Conference, for an 8 p.m. game Tuesday.

Plunkett Honored by TD Club

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Stanford's Heisman Trophy winning Jim Plunkett, who destroyed Ohio State in the Rose Bowl game with his pin point passing, was honored Friday night in the home of the Buckeyes as College Football Player of the Year.

The Touchdown Club of Columbus, at its 16th annual all-sports awards dinner, named Plunkett, No. 1 pick in the recent NFL draft, recipient of the Chic Harley Trophy.

Plunkett, who received a standing ovation from the crowd of nearly 1,000, thanked the club for the "hospitality they've shown me, despite being from Stanford."

Plunkett was one of seven top collegiate signal callers honored by the club in line with its theme of "The Year of the Quarterback."

Also on hand to receive awards were Chuck Hixson of Southern Methodist, Kirk Kern of Ohio State, Archie Manning of Mississippi, Don Moorhead of Michigan and John Reeves of Florida. Dennis Dummit of UCLA and Joe Theismann of Notre Dame were unable to attend.

Another collegiate passer, Pat Sullivan of Auburn, received one of the club's top awards, the Sammy Baugh Trophy, as the best college passer of the 1970 season.

The Oakland Raiders' George

Blanda, who specialized in last minute heroics to save five games from the loss column during the past season, was named recipient of the Vince Lombardi Trophy as the NFL's outstanding player in the NFL.

Don Meredith, who along with Blanda, was a member of the Vince Lombardi Trophy as the NFL's outstanding player in the NFL.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 6, 1971

The $229.2 Billion Budget

Perhaps the best way to understand President Nixon's 1972 budget is to present it in comparison to the amount of the Gross National Product, the total of goods and services this country produces. That GNP just crossed the trillion dollar mark. The 1972 budget calls for an expenditure of $229.2 billion, just under one-fourth of the GNP. In other words, nearly one-fourth of all that we, the American people, produce this year will go to the federal government. And when the cost of local and state government is added, the share for all government will exceed one-fourth.

No matter who sits in the White House, the 50 state houses, the numerous county court houses and municipal buildings, the cost of government continues to grow. There is no such thing as economy and efficiency in government. There may be individual exceptions, but they are rare and they don't last. Public pressure soon overwhelms the man or woman trying to give 100 cents for the dollar of public service. Public demand is insatiable—and costly.

We believe these are some of the reasons why President Nixon has turned to restructuring of the government. After two years in office, he learned that the federal government is a jungle of duplication and that there is no way economically and efficiently to accomplish federal goals, except by a wholesale reorganization of the domestic apparatus.

The 1972 budget does not reflect that reorganization. The new government has not even been described; and when it is, there is reason to fear that Congress will not accept it.

If nothing else will persuade the legislators, the size of the budget should. They are knowledgeable enough to know where the great leaks are. Surely, they will come to agree that before much more can be done for people, the deadwood of government must be swept out and new functional departments set up so that these unconscionable billions will be spent to the best advantage. The public interest must overcome personal pretensions.

Japan's Economic Race

Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato opened the winter session of the Diet (parliament) with a prediction that Japan's Gross National Product would climb from an expected $233 billion this year to $700 billion by 1980, despite a recent slowdown in national economic growth. To do this, Japan's economy has been growing at a rate of 10 to 12 per cent in recent years, about four times the U. S. rate.

Sato thus signaled an economic race with the United States which no other nation in the world has undertaken, except for the boastful unfulfilled pretensions of Soviet leaders. Japan now ranks third among the world's trading nations, after the United States and the Soviet Union. Japan ranks ahead of all the industrialized European nations taken individually, but behind the six combined members of the Common Market, who had a total output in 1968 of $306.6 billion.

The impact of Japanese relations with the United States, said Sato, "on the livelihood of the Japanese people is greater than that of our relations with any other country." He added, "a change in this fact is quite unforeseeable in the near future."

In other words, the United States is Japan's best customer, and while we are not disposed to take advantage of that fact, we must help to eradicate any injustices in the trade between the two countries. For instance, we should welcome and encourage growth in wage levels in Japan so that this part of the gap in the cost of production will not militate so much against our workers.

The per capita income in Japan last year was $1,506, no level of competition for our high cost workers. Sato's promise that the per capita income will rise to $2,700 by 1975 is a step in the right direction. It must quadruple before it is competitive. Our trade negotiators should keep this in mind in all dealings with the island empire.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Pell-Mell Retreat From Viet

Again, President Nixon is under the gun in Cambodia and Laos. The renewed upsurge in Communist rumblings like a howling alley and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright talks of the Communists as if he were King Canute.

But what, Mr. President, Nixon do?

In addition to the Cooper-Church amendment, the pressures on Mr. Nixon to "get out of Vietnam" may be contrived by Hanoi but others deeply sincere, are self-evident. And both the Cambodian situation and Secretary of State William P. Rogers' Laos warnings are taken as "proof" that Mr. Nixon is not "going out" as promised.

Now, Alice in Wonderland, they seem to have decided that the verdict should proceed the evidence, even though the evidence itself is as easy to see as what happened to the Titanic. Cambodia is only the size of Oklahoma but it has 6 1/2 million people defended by a mere 35,000 in the army. Laos is smaller than Oregon but it has 2.8 million people defended by no coherent army at all. Thailand, the size of France and with 34 million people, the only nation in the entire area never ruled by a foreign power, borders Cambodia, Laos and Burma and extends along the tapering peninsula that wanders off toward Singapore. And today all four countries, and probably India and vast Indonesia as well, are in the same boat—and so are we.

One grim reality is that the President is trapped by the international "Rangers" in moving the "not getting out" charges right out of the water. Nothing could be more damaging to the American interest than for him to dramatize the fact that, in simple truth, we are actually in a full-scale, nearly pell-mell retreat.

Respect for the United States in our first line of defense. One unwon war in Korea was one too many, and now here's another. About all the President can do is put as good a face as possible on our pell-mell retreat from the horrible inherited mess and pray that the American rear guard can survive. For this is the physical fact of the problem.

The President has hog-tied himself by refusing to clarify that we are really in a nearly pell-mell retreat, that any large-scale retreat is always the most difficult of all military maneuvers, immensely dangerous, and that the crux of the problem is how to protect your rear guard. This is the built-in peril of a retreat. Do you remember Napoleon's retreat from Moscow? Do you remember how Rommel in his North African retreat lost a quarter of a million men in his rear guard?

There were 60,000 North Vietnamese in Cambodia and there are more than that in Laos. As with the attack on the Cambodian sanctuary, the present air action in Cambodia and Laos is a spoiling action covering our rear guard in our Vietnam retreat, a spoiling action relentlessly and viciously forced on us by the enemy himself. Who else?

With this all, it would be bad enough. But after withdrawing 265,000 Americans the rear guard will consist of only two American combat divisions and perhaps only one. A year later the President's confidential schedule is to leave only 30,000 U.S. support troops in Vietnam.

President Nixon's definition is the war's "Vietnamization," but while this is an honest hope, it may turn out to be only a euphemism.

The fundamental weakness in our Paris truce-talk position is that we cannot outlast the enemy in Vietnam and we are certainly now in no position to outfight him.

Our policy is to hope South Vietnam can erect a government and military structure strong enough to protect itself against disaster. Hanoi hopes the reverse. Accordingly, Hanoi wants to postpone any settlement whatever until it has had at least a try at collapsing the Saigon structure and the South Vietnamese hope to build.

The "not getting out" charges march merely on the surface of things: you look in vain for the kind of comprehension or wisdom required at a time when what Lincoln called "the mystic chords of grief" stretch from "the battlefields and from patriots' graves to the living hearts and hearthstones of our land."

The Morality of Abortion

Failure Complicates Problem

By TOM TIENE

NEW YORK (NEA)—A few months ago a pregnant woman checked into a local hospital for what has become very routine in this state—an abortion.

This case, however, was hardly routine.

The woman was late in pregnancy, probably over six months, and thus underwent the saline injection method of termination. This is the most serious and least desirable of various abortion procedures. A needle is injected into the mother's amniotic sac—which houses the unborn fetus—and a portion of fluid is withdrawn. Then a saline or sugar substance is injected as a substitute, which in some circumstances, kills the fetus immediately and induces abortion.

Only this time something went wrong.

The abortion succeeded but the fetus did not die. It emerged alive. Miraculously, it then hung on to gain strength and develop normally. It survives today, its mother refused to accept it, so it was quietly put up for adoption. According to city officials the child "has now been taken care of."

The instance, which has stunned that portion of the public which has heard about it, is historic only insofar as the baby survived abortion permanently. There have been at least 27 verified live births of late terminations in New York City, but all the others expired after a few minutes or few hours of life. Naturally, a controversy is growing.

olic, many of who are against induced abortions at any stage of pregnancy, critics are pressuring the state to "immediately and at least" minimize the time period where such terminations can be performed. Since July 1970, when New York legalized abortion, the law has permitted surgical procedures up to 24 weeks. Some opponents of the permissive feel it should be lowered to 20 weeks; others insist it be brought down to 12.

One outspoken proponent of early abortions is Dr. George Lawrence Jr., head of the obstetrics and gynecology department at New York's Flushing Hospital. He's a Catholic, a member of the anti-abortion Right to Life Committee, and says late abortions are against good medical sense.

"The public has got to understand what it is to induce abortion late in pregnancy. It is not just a minor thing. It's a major operation. The public shouldn't think that it's just a perfectly innocuous procedure. People should be afraid of it. And at the very least we all should know that, even in a successful late human being has been killed. A baby with arms and legs, nose, ears, eyes—it's not a thing, it's a viable person."

Medical men of Dr. Lawrence's persuasion believe that the current 24-week law makes it probable that fetuses up to nearly seven months old will be killed and aborted. This is because desperate women often lie about their pregnancy term, and even the best physician can only estimate term within two or three weeks.

Critics also believe that since late abortion live births are of some embarrassment, or at least nuisance, to performing physicians, little is done to save the lives of such mistakes. Says Dr. Lawrence: "I can't prove it, or document it, but I know that some live births are just left to expire. Nothing is done to save most of them."

For its part, the New York City health administration, which sanctions local abortions, denies all charges of callous medical practices and hopes the law remains as it is. "We do not like late terminations," says Maternity Services Director Dr. Jean Pakter, "but we certainly would not want to turn away when in need." She says some women, often for psychological reasons, wait until late in pregnancy before deciding on abortion. "And they shouldn't be penalized."

Health authorities here are hopeful that, left alone, the late abortion problem will work itself out. Figures indicate that of more than 60,000 legal terminations in the city so far, only about 300 have been beyond 20 weeks. And the belief is, as abortion education continues, the ratio will shrink even more.

The thing is, says one New York abortionist, "We can't let the nuts start monkeying with the law. They had their way for centuries. Yes, we've had some live births; we've had a dozen patient deaths, too. But by the end of the year we'll have performed 130,000 abortions. That means 130,000 women saved from unwanted babies. I think that's a hell of a good argument for our side."

11 Bureaucrats Tried to Stop Black Boycott of Nixon's Speech

WASHINGTON—The Nixon Administration was whipped to such a fever pitch to sell the President's State of the Union address that even the Labor Department swung into fast action to head off the planned boycott of the speech by black Congressmen.

While the effort failed, it was the first time in memory that anything has happened in such a hurry at the Labor Department. Here are the backstage details:

Hearing of the boycott, Brown, the only black in President Nixon's palace guard, put through a call to Arthur Fletcher, the black Assistant Labor Secretary on the morning of the speech.

Brown asked Fletcher to do what he could to see that the President's plans got a fair hearing from blacks and expressed concern at the Congressman's plans to walk out on the speech.

Fletcher then asked Malcolm Lovell, another assistant secretary, to have his staff quickly get up a list of prominent blacks who had worked with the Department in various programs. They would then be contacted and asked to support the President's speech and to wire the Congressmen urging that the boycott be dropped.

Eleven bureaucrats were ordered to do everything to tackle the project. One group of eight had a list ready in 30 minutes and the other three were finished in an hour.

In all, they dug out of the files 40 names with addresses and phone numbers. They were turned over to Fletcher, who got a similar list from the Office of Federal Contract Compliance. By noon, Fletcher had well over 50 names.

Asked about using government personnel to whip up political support for the Administration program, Fletcher insisted it was necessary to alert the black community to the numerous Nixon proposals that were to direct benefit to minorities, such as family assistance, and health care.

Brown said his call to Fletcher was intended more to generate a favorable response from blacks in general than to head off the boycott. However, he added: "Personally, I think it would have been good if the Congressmen showed a less negative attitude."

Cement's Angel

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., whose Finance Committee oversees the Treasury Department, has bullrugged Treasury into giving his cronies in the cement industry a multi-million-dollar tax loophole.

Now, unless incoming Treasury Secretary John Connally reverses the secret decision to appease Long, the taxpayers at large will have to make up the taxes that the cement tycoons escape.

As far back as Dec. 5, 1967 Long told then Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler in a private letter that "a number of American cement companies" were unhappy about Fowler's plan to tax certain transportation costs.

"I frown on" the tax proposal, wrote Long. He urged Fowler "as strongly as I know how to remedy your proposed regulations." Fowler manfully bucked Long and put the regulations into effect anyway.

On Dec. 4, 1969, Long, still smarting from the defeat, had his chief counsel, Tom Vail, advise Treasury of his feeling that the cement industry had been double-crossed by the Fowler regulations.

But the Democrats, who were about to turn the Treasury over to the Nixon Administration, looking down on an Long, seemed determined Senator had a letter in the mail from before President Nixon was inaugurated.

"The cement industry, which the surplus industry have been in touch with since he began. Once again, he demanded action to grant the loophole. The Republicans were facing four years of dealings with Long and with his power to make or break Treasury appointments—the Treasury Department, therefore, caved in.

Treasury printed a proposed regulation to give cement a loophole on the very day after Long confirmed Senator Thayer as head of the office. In the meantime, the Senate upheld the Fowler decision over the cement industry's howls.

But so sure is the cement lobby of final victory over the courts that it gloated in an appeal brief recently that the Treasury has "informally announced" that it will yield on the loophole.

The appeal is signed by O. Don Chapoton whose twin brother, John, is Treasury's Tax Legislative Counsel. John Chapoton has stepped out of the case.

Drug Surveillance

Rep. Jim Scheuer, D-N.Y., will call for satellite surveillance by the United Nations of the world's poppy-growing areas. He will claim that satellites "can spot a bouquet of opium poppies in a 10-by-10 backyard patch." He will advocate that poppy-plagued nations should buy up the poppy patches and destroy them before the capsules can be processed into opium.

Scheuer will make his dramatic proposal at the prestigious International Psychotropic Substances Conference on drugs, which convenes this month in Vienna.

House Speaker Carl Albert reached Scheuer by transatlantic telephone in Paris to ask him to be the congressional delegate to the conference. He was touring five European countries at his own expense to study the drug problem.

Muskie Continues to Top All Rivals in California

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA)—

Maine's Sen. Edmund Muskie is far better placed today for the highly important 1972 California Democratic presidential primary than any of his rivals. And he will have to suffer pretty severely to lose that advantage.

The stakes are incredibly high. With its 1960-70 population gains cranked in, California next time could have 200 or more (possibly many more) delegate votes—or nearly one-fifth of the total needed to nominate. All will go to the primary winner in one big lump.

Despite some mistakes, Muskie seemed to hold his own on his bold, early plunge into the always roiled California political waters.

He made a good if not dominant impression on state Democratic convention delegates in Sacramento who also heard rival Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota and Birch Bayh of Indiana.

Bay's effective speech may have scored the most emotional points. But his very low visibility in the national polls is a terrible handicap. Assembly speaker Robert Moretti told him if he doesn't improve his national status materially in six months or so, he can't look to them for help.

McGovern delivered his usual hard shots about getting out of Vietnam, and at Stockton spoke in strong terms about recognizing Red China. Yet canvassers among Democrats had to draw his name up when reaction to the three visiting candidates was being sought.

An avowed Muskie backer, Rep. Jerome Waldie, thinks McGovern will not be able to capitalize greatly on his preeminent antiwar position, notwithstanding the strength of such sentiment among California liberals. Waldie's argument is that if Vietnam fades as a 1972 issue it won't mean all that much to the South Dakotan, whereas if it flares up and becomes a "national obsession," all merge in opposition outcry and McGovern's voice will be undistinguishable.

On his five-day swing, Muskie's resonant voice was carrying well. He is a superb speaker, able occasionally to infuse even the broadest generality with at least the faint thunder of significance. He got over the demographic circuit with mediocre completeness, talking to politicians, businessmen, labor leaders, women, young folk, and having some breakfast with Tom Bradley, defeated black candidate for mayor of Los Angeles in 1969. How he registered on all these cannot be precisely measured, but the guessing is he hung in there.

Private meetings figure heavily on the trip, some with political and legislative leaders, most with business types packing fat wallets.

Behind the doors, Muskie gave these listeners the lofty stuff about his talks with Soviet Premier Kosygin, German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and others, while aide Berl Bernhard talked coin of the realm. Muskie says some of those present were Republicans unhappy over President Nixon's economics. Names of possible contributors not on the dinner lists were sought.

Muskie told newsmen in a 45-minute chat that big money is needed to underpin the sizable organization he is building in his downtown Washington political office. Expected early additions are a major political strategist and a press secretary.

For Democrats, the wealthy California and New York inevitably the prime money markets. Muskie will need funds not just for general use but particularly for California itself, where the primary campaign could cost from $2.5 million to $3 million.

He got off to a good start this trip. Any rival who can't get the big dollar will be sorely strapped for the great California test in 1972.

Dramatic Doings for Coleman's Cinderella Cast

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON — There are dramatic doings at John A. Coleman High School these days as cast and stage crew for the Children's Theater production of Cinderella goes into final staging.

The play will be presented at the school Feb. 12 and 14 at 2 and 8 p.m. both days and Feb. 13 at 10 a.m. Advance ticket sale starts Monday at the school. Tickets may be purchased at the door also.

Although billed as Children's Theater, the production promises to be a delight for young and old. Backers of the entire community to attend. The concept of a children's theater was brought to Coleman High School early this fall by Gerrard M. Getzinger, instructor in Spanish and a graduate of Marist College, who has been involved in theater arts for three years. Readings took place in early October when 13 students turned out for auditions.

Assists were provided along the way by Marist College Children's Theater personnel including Stephanie Pyrek in the area of make-up and Ed Barry in set design and construction. Music director and choreographer is Francine Urciuoli. There is a Cinderella story within the plot too as Miss Urciuoli and Getzinger met while appearing in the Marist College version of the play and romance developed.

A warm welcome to the world of theater was provided by Coach House Players with the loan of costumes, some props and lots of talent in the person of Bill Chavis. The morale support of Kingston's established little theater group helped wave the magic wand over the fledgling Coleman Cinderella.

The script by Edward Sch-warts was adapted to include some new characters. Galaron and Curdin were added to the palace staff as courtiers and the Queen's cousins. Roland, the prince, enters the scene with his lady love Felicia.

Sister Maureen an English instructor at Coleman is co-director with Getzinger. She is a graduate of Manhattanville College and has been involved in theater and the creative arts. Student producer and entrepreneur extraordinaire is James E. Carpine. A senior at Coleman, he plans to enter Marist College in the fall. He has been involved in theater arts for three years. Readings took place in early October when 13 students turned out for auditions.

Lead roles are played by Lee Schichtel, a sophomore at Coleman and a member of CVA and the Spanish Club as Cinderella. Her Prince Charming is played by John Guss, also a sophomore student. He is a member of the Varsity basketball team, Varsity Club and is a class representative in student government.

The cast of 30 students has been aided behind the scenes by a very busy production staff.

Working with stage manager Ed Barry are assistants Paul Novak and Walter Sales. Their choreography assistant is to offer enjoyment to youngsters and adults while fostering community relations through an evening of pleasurable entertainment. Morning, afternoon and evening performances are being offered so that all in the community may take part in the experience of Children's Theater that bridges most any kind of gap.

Lighting details will be handled by Marianna Szwed-winsky and John Rioux. Mari-anna is serving as pianist for the production.

Publicity, make up and set construction involved committees of Coleman students whose cooperation and effort was essential to the production of the play in the best possible showcase.

Major characters in the play in addition to the lead characters are Crulla, Charmaine, Lisa, Stomper, Lisa McGrath, Galaron Frank Bailey, Curdin, Kieran Egan, Felicia, Nora Hansen and Genemarie Blum; Roland, Joseph Bertone and Charles Hafner; Brinilde, Annarose Ingarra; King Alan Aidala; and Queen Kathi Gorman.

Subordinate characters nonetheless important to the production are The Bard, Thomas Ryan; Jas. Angela Tomaselli; Gus-Gus, Victor Patience; Lady Mobs, Cynthia Rieley; Pags, Michael Hill; Peary Goodmother, Cassandra McGrane and Colleen McSpirt and Lucifer, Gerard Cudone.

The Mice are Kathy Lyle, Fred Klum, Lorraine Wagener, Mary-Boh Lawrence and Linda Heaney.

Ballroom dancers are Thomas Ryan, Michael Hill, Joseph Bertone, Charles Hafner, Mary Schatzel, Margaret Blum, Nora Hansen, Genemarie Blum, and Maryanne Farrell.

The philosophy of Children's Theater according to Car-pino who doubles as publicity director as well as producer and choreography assistant, is to offer enjoyment to youngsters and adults while fostering community relations through an evening of pleasurable entertainment. Morning, afternoon and evening performances are being offered so that all in the community may take part in the experience of Children's Theater that bridges most any kind of gap.

Look there says Genemarie Blum to Kieran Egan

Studying script are Annarose Ingarra and Lisa McGrath

TEEN SCENE

"HOW FAR TO GO TO COLLEGE"

Those midyear grades are final now, and many students find the subject of their future at college more on their mind than ever. Seniors are possibly sweating out choosing the college of their choice, or waiting to see if the college of their choice chooses them. Other students would like to go to college, but feel that their chances of admission are very slim — either because of low grades, or because of financing difficulties. In making their list of the colleges they would like to attend, far too many students include Yale or Northeastern or Vassar or Duke and overlook the area colleges, such as the community colleges in this district.

Which is better for you — a local public college, or a state or private college in another district? To a large extent, there is a different answer for every student. Both types of colleges have their advantages and their problems. Different factors make each student's best choice an individual matter.

The biggest advantages of the community colleges is that they eliminate, to a large extent, those two major stumbling blocks — acceptance and finance. Since, unlike the Ivy League, they aren't getting ten times the applications they can accept, the student whose record might rule him or her out of a major college can continue his or her education at these junior colleges. Some students aren't really interested in four years of college, or they may be uncertain as to the direction they want their college education to take. The fees at community colleges are usually a fraction of those at the major colleges, and scholarships are available for outstanding students to whom even small fees would be a hardship.

In addition, most students can continue to live at home, saving a substantial amount on housing. Some can continue to use the family car for transportation. By staying in their home area, many students feel that they run a better chance of getting or keeping jobs, to help with expenses. Classes are smaller and pressure is lighter. Many of a student's high school friends may be attending there also, eliminating the feeling of being uprooted that sometimes (combined with the increased difficulty of studies) undoes students who travel to a distant college. Many students find that after one or two years at a community college, it is surprisingly easy to transfer to a "name" college — the crush is in the freshman year. After that, the dropouts and the throwouts leave a lot more room.

Of course, there are disadvantages to a home-town college, too. Some students find they can't really feel that they are at college. "It's like two more years of high school," one complained. Some students anticipate leaving the home environment, and find that beginning college provides a logical break with the "teen years." Some educators feel that the increased independence and responsibility are a part of the college education process. Time away at college can give new perspective to the loves, ambitions, and problems of the teen years, and introduce the student to new people and new interests. Some feel that major colleges attract more talented teachers, and that this offsets the impersonality of huge classes. Others find that the curriculum at area colleges can be deceptively simple, and that they face difficulty adjusting what they have studied to the classes at a four-year college. A few find difficulties attempting to transfer into a college of their choice later.

For some students, the college out of the area may be a far better choice. A student wishing to specialize in one area — art, medicine, or law, for instance — ought to pick a college specializing in that field. A larger college often has more of a variety in extra-curricular activities. And, of course, a student who's going to college to impress people who read his resume will, unfortunately, impress a lot more people with a major college. Some students find that a college in another part of the country increases their experience by living, as well as learning.

In making your choice, your school counselor can help you weigh the possibilities open to you. Talk to friends who have gone away to college, and visit your local "community." Some students in this area are fortunate enough to be able to combine the advantages of both types of college by attending one of the excellent private and state four-year-colleges that the Hudson Valley is noted for. In making your decision, weigh the opinions of others, but remember that it's your education, not theirs, that is at stake. Picking the right college will be a major factor in not only your education, but your life after graduation.

Novel Study Break

KINGSTON — Taking advantage of this year's four day weekend, February 12-15, which results from the observation of Washington's birthday on the 15th rather than the 22nd and the regular two day weekend Feb. 20-21, Ulster Academy will offer its students the opportunity of a special 10 day Independent Study or Internship Study Period over the span of February 12-22.

The program as a whole as described by the school's headmaster, R. A. Nelson, is designed to be both innovative and intensive in giving the students the challenge of assisted exploration of a topic of their own choice. Students who do not choose to participate in the program or whose projects are not given final approval by the faculty have the option of attending a modified school day for the four school days Feb. 16-19.

The program as designed by the Academy's faculty and its head offers a student the choice between independent study and internship study. Independent study in this case is described as academic research or creative work on a topic of the student's choice using the resources of the school, libraries, museums, art studios.

Internship study while involving research in the production of some kind of report by the student involves a student's serving as an "Intern" in the "World" for the period of the program under the supervision of some responsible person. For example, a student might spend the period in a law office, at court, in a ski shop, in a factory, on a boat, in a real estate office gaining first hand experience about some aspect of practical daily affairs in the adult world.

Since early January each one of Ulster Academy's 93 students has been assigned to one member of the school's 10 member faculty who becomes his Program Advisor. In a series of conversations with this advisor the student has developed his own particular project for the program. No later than the Feb. 1 deadline he submitted to his advisor his own proposal for a project for the program in a regular standardized form. The faculty advisor helps the student plan the resources he will need to carry out his project and helps him determine the shape his results should take whether it be a table of statistics, a scientific report, a painting, a manuscript or a more traditional academic paper.

The faculty as a whole grants final approval to all student projects. Students who do not wish to participate, or whose projects are not approved will come to school for extra help or modified class day for the days Feb. 16-19.

The range of student proposals expresses a wide variety of interests and concerns ranging from silver-smithing to research on court conditions and judicial problems, from studies of the ski industry to studies in microbiology. The deadline for the submission of the project report is March 1 and the project will be evaluated not only by the advisor but by faculty teams competent to evaluate each particular project.

Whitfield-Ward Wedding Announced Here

MRS. KERMATH FRANCIS WARD
(Olelu Studio)

Sailor's Snug Harbor Church, Staten Island, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Barbara Francis Whitfield, RD. 4, Box 261A, Kingston, and Kermath Francis Ward, 81 Clinton Avenue, Kingston, on Saturday, Jan. 23. The Rev. Charles Coen of St. Paul's Church, Staten Island, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. William Wilcox, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Two vases of white gladioli and white pompons decorated the altar.

Miss Whitfield is the daughter of Mrs. George Whitfield, 108 Lamport Boulevard, Staten Island, and the late George Whitfield. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermath B. Ward, 73 Pleasant Valley Avenue, Staten Island.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Stephen J. Whitfield. She selected a Victorian-style white satin gown, fashioned with an empire waist and central lace panel. A camelot cap held her fingertip length veil and she carried a cascade of white cymbidiums, stephanotis and ivy. The gown and veil were hand sewn by the bride.

The sister of the bride, Miss Carol Whitfield of Staten Island, served as maid of honor in a light green crepe blouse and a moss green velvet skirt. She carried a nosegay of yellow and brown pompons and stephanotis. Attendants were Mrs. Steven Friedman, Highland; Mrs.

Philip Dippel, Sea Bright, N.J.; and Miss Jan Whitfield, cousin of the bride, Islip.

nosegay of yellow, brown and rust pompons.

Kevin J. Ward of Staten Island served as best man for his brother, Lester L. Ward, Kingston; Edward Spaight, Poughkeepsie; and Richard Mourino, Sayville, L.I., were ushers.

A reception for 85 guests was held at Pavilion on the Terrace, Staten Island.

The bride wore a minute woolen pants ensemble with black patent leather accessories for her wedding journey to the Plaza Hotel, New York City, and the Pocomoke, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Ward is a 1967 graduate of New Dorp High School, Staten Island, and a 1970 graduate of State University College at New Paltz, where she received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Secondary Education: Social Studies. She is now a full-time graduate student at New Paltz where she is working on her Masters degree.

Her husband is an alumnus of Augustinian Academy, Staten Island, Class of 1965, and a 1969 graduate of Mariet College, Poughkeepsie, where he earned a BA degree in Business Administration. While at college he was the captain of the varsity tennis team. He now teaches Business at John A. Coleman High School, Kingston, where he also coaches both varsity cross country and varsity tennis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward will make their home at Binnewater Lane, Binnewater.

May Wedding Being Planned

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Winslow of Ulster Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Jean, to Gary David Spence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Spence of S. Albany.

Miss Winslow is a 1968 graduate of Kingston High School. She is employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Kingston.

Her fiancé attended Kingston High School and was a member of the First Marine Division, serving a tour of duty in Vietnam. He is a member of the St. Remy Volunteer Fire Company and is employed by Ray Chevrolet, Kingston.

A May wedding is planned.

Salmi-Lambiasi Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Smith Jr. announce the engagement of her daughter, Grace Alina Salmi, to John W. Lambiasi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lambiasi of 168 Washington Avenue, Kingston.

The bride-elect is a senior at Kingston High School, majoring in Business. She also works part time at Benedictine Hospital and Southside Baptist Church.

Her fiancé, a 1970 graduate of Kingston High School, is attending Ulster County Community College where he is majoring in Business. He is employed part time for Grand Union Company, Kingston Plaza.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Informal Discussion Program Slated

Mrs. Harry W. Bunnack, Kingston; Mrs. Richard Tennant, Samsonville; and Mrs. Othman, Abu-Gheida, Stone Ridge will be organizers of informal discussion groups as part of the American Association of University Women "Great Decisions" program, beginning Sunday it was announced today. Mrs. Abu-Gheida, AAUW World Problems Area Representative, expects approximately 30 individuals to join in the eight-week study of critical headline issues of foreign policy.

"Great Decisions '71" is an eight-week program which will focus attention and provide background facts on eight key foreign policy issues. The eight issues will provide weekly topics for media programs, newspaper forums. The core of the program, however, will be informal home discussion groups.

It is emphasized that no special training is necessary to organize or participate in a "Great Decisions" informal discussion group. The primary objective of the program is to allow every citizen to inform himself and to express his own opinions on foreign policy to Congress and the State Department.

Special materials developed by the Foreign Policy Association provide the facts, background and nonpartisan policy alternatives for discussion groups. FPA is a non-governmental, nonpartisan, educational organization.

Interested persons may obtain additional information from Mrs. Othman, Abu-Gheida, chairman, Stone Ridge or Mrs. Robert Resta, AAUW Kingston branch president, Kingston. There are a few study guides for the program still available and one need not be a member of AAUW to join one of the groups.

Engagements Reported to The Freeman

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Postano of Barclay Heights, Saugerties, announce the engagement of their daughter, Corinne, to Dennis L. Downs, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Russell Downs.

The bride-elect is a 1970 graduate of Saugerties High School and is employed by W. T. Grant in Saugerties, as office cashier. Dennis L.

Downs EN3 (SS), is a graduate of Sunnyside High School, Sunnyside, Cal., and is presently stationed at the Sumner Base in New London, Conn., on board the USS Thomas A. Edison SSBN 610 Gold.

The tentative date set for the wedding is the spring of 1972.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Christians Jr. of 28 Larned Avenue, Pleasantville, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jean, to Robert Charles Senseney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Senseney of Linwood, N.J.

Miss Christians is the granddaughter of Mrs. Elmer E. Christians Sr. and the late Elmer E. Christians, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sheeley of Napandch.

The bride-elect attended Bob Jones University of Greenville, S. C. Her fiancé is attending Cederville College in Ohio.

An August wedding is being planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Beiter of Blue Mountain, Saugerties, announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Ann, to William John Kinkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kinkel, also of Saugerties.

Miss Beiter is a 1968 graduate of St. Patrick's High School in Catskill, and received her Associate in Applied Science degree in Nursing at Hudson Valley Community College in Troy. She is employed as a registered nurse at St. Mary's Hospital in Troy.

Her fiancé was graduated from Saugerties High School and Siena College, Albany. He is employed by the Saugerties School System as a social worker.

No date has been set for the wedding.

During Cambodian Sweep

Viets Rout Crack Red Unit

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces sweeping through eastern Cambodia encountered a battle-tested North Vietnamese unit today and reported 91 enemy killed in one of the biggest battles since the allies crossed the Cambodian border last May.

South Vietnamese headquarters said one prisoner and 27 weapons were captured, and 10 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 37 wounded.

The fight was triggered early today when North Vietnamese troops from the 9th Division used mortars and ground troops against the command post of a South Vietnamese task force near the Chup Rubber Plantation east of Kompong Cham.

Behind allied air and artillery support, the South Vietnamese tanks, armored personnel carriers and 400 rangers repulsed the attackers before dawn, the command said.

A Saigon spokesman said the prisoner identified the enemy force as part of the 272nd Regiment of the 9th, a veteran of combat against Americans in South Vietnam. The 9th Division entered Cambodia last May after the allied incursion and is now near the rubber plantation about 25 miles from South Viet-nam's border and 110 miles northwest of Saigon.

Twenty-thousand South Vietnamese began a campaign this week against North Vietnamese base areas and sanctuaries in eastern Cambodia to pre-empt any dry-season offensive planned by the Communist command. The move also is to protect Saigon during withdrawal of 20,000 U.S. troops from the capital area during the next three months.

There have been indications that the North Vietnamese 9th and 7th divisions have been trying to re-establish sanctuaries in Cambodia.

North Vietnamese gunners sent 70 mortar shells into the South Vietnamese ranger and armored cavalry positions, Friday, but headquarters said South Vietnamese casualties were light.

A companion sweep of northern South Vietnam near Laos by 29,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops was stalled for a second day today by rain and turbulent winds, but U.S. commanders said little indication of recent North Vietnamese activity has been found.

Their assessment and a statement by the U.S. Command that the drive was to counter an enemy buildup threatening northwestern South Vietnam underscored doubts by observers as to the true objective.

The proposed battle plan was understood to have called for a drive into Laos by South Vietnamese troops using American air and logistical support. But there was speculation in Saigon that President Nixon has not made up his mind. The President is calling the shots during the operation, sources said.

A pro-Communist Patriotic Lao Front spokesman was quoted as saying a portion of some of the allied troops along the border have advanced 12 miles into Laos. The Nippon Denpa News of Tokyo said the charge was made by Phao Phim Phachanh, chief information officer of the PLF stationed in Hanoi, in an interview with a correspondent. But a spokesman for the U.S. Command said, "There are no U.S. ground combat troops in Laos."

The South Vietnamese command also denied that Saigon ground combat troops are there. Associated Press Correspondent Michael Putzel, returning from a 24-hour trip to allied forward positions east of the Laotian frontier, said there was no activity there. Rain, low cloud covers and wind sharply curtailed U.S. air activity, and ground troops are reluctant to move without an air umbrella.

American infantrymen are operating off Route 9 within a few hundred yards of the border. Brig. Gen. John J. Hill, commander of the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, told Putzel they are under orders not to cross the border.

American tanks and personnel carriers are spread out along a seven-mile stretch of the highway from Lang Vei to the border, but the allied troops have spotted nothing and are doing very little.

U.S. artillery positioned near Lang Vei have been used infrequently and when called on apparently have confined their shells to the Vietnamese side.

The operation has produced only small contacts with 14 enemy claimed killed and five Americans wounded. Only small enemy munitions caches have been turned up.

Western sources in Vientiane said today any invasion of Laos by South Vietnamese troops may be held up for approval of the neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma.

The sources said Nixon might decide to call off the invasion if he can't get Souvanna's support. The Laotian premier recently has been pressured heavily by North Vietnam, Communist China and the Soviet Union to seek a halt to U.S. bombing along the Ho Chi Minh trail. If he supported an invasion officially, it would destroy his current neutralist position.

British Soldier, 3 Civilians Killed

Fear Irish Civil War

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Religious rioting threatened to erupt into civil war in Northern Ireland today after a British soldier and three Irishmen were killed in a shootout between British troops and members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Another civilian blew himself up when a bomb he was about to throw exploded. The three hours of fighting began in Belfast's Roman Catholic district shortly after midnight and was one of the worst outbreaks in two years of strife between the Catholic minority and Protestants in the British province. The IRA is trying to drive the British from the six northern counties and bring them under the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Six civilians were wounded when a bomb went off in the Stankill Road area, a Protestant district, and terrorists blew up a major water main in Belfast's suburbs.

Police said 37 persons were arrested, 11 juveniles.

The latest trouble started four nights earlier when British soldiers searched for hidden arms in Catholic districts. Increasingly bitter clashes between civilians and soldiers have occurred each night since.

Thousands of troops remained on alert in the province at dawn. The troops appeared shocked by the death of their first comrade killed in action since the army came to Belfast to put down rioting in August 1969.

The soldier was on a foot patrol that came under machine-gun fire in the Ardoyne district. Four other soldiers were wounded, two seriously. British officers said both the civilians who were shot dead were snipers picked off by British marksmen.

A witness described a street in Ardoyne as "like a valley of lead—bullets were dipping and spraying from one side to the other."

Observers said mobs ranged in size from a few dozen to a hundred or more. Fire and acid bombs, bricks and dynamite sticks were hurled at police and troops by rioters racing from street to street through connecting alleyways.

About 1,000 soldiers were in Belfast, some patrolling Protestant districts that remained relatively quiet. More than 6,000 British troops in the province were bolstered this week by 720 men in an infantry battalion and an armored car squadron.

Several soldiers were injured in Londonderry, where they set up barbed-wire barricades to seal off the Catholic Bogside area. A gang of youths smashed their way into a post office commission and fled.

Rape and Murder Spree Ends in New Mexico Desert

GRANTS, N.M. (UPI)—Police issued an alert Thursday when a 13-year-old girl, daughter of a former Green Beret major, was raped and killed in the Los Angeles area.

The search intensified Friday when an Arizona State Highway Patrolman was killed, another was shot, and a young married man was slain, his wife was seriously wounded and their car was stolen.

The case ended later Friday after a chase in the Central New Mexico desert when officers shot and killed Bertram Greenberg, 38, a former mental patient. They charged Greenberg committed the crimes.

Police said Greenberg, an ex-convict, raped and strangled Mary Hill, a ninth-grader of Silverlake, Calif., Thursday. The girl, daughter of a former Green Beret major, was found sprawled on her back in Griffin Park in the Los Angeles area, said he had slashed her wrists, her blouse and bra wrapped around her neck and her jeans in place but unbuttoned.

They said Arizona Highway Patrolman James Lee Keeton, Atascadero State Hospital, a 27, responding to a bulletin issued by Los Angeles police stopped Greenberg Friday near Sanders, Ariz. in a stolen car. Keeton was shot, but radioed a distress message before dying, they said. Don Allen Beckstead, another patrolman, was shot in the stomach. He was listed in serious condition.

Later, James E. and Karen Brown picked up a man, identified as Greenberg, near the New Mexico-Arizona border. Police said the man forced them to stop the car a short time later, tied Brown's arms behind his back. The man shot Brown in the head, killing him, police said. Mrs. Brown, 23, was reported in fair condition at a Gallup, N.M. hospital.

Grants police said they spotted the stolen Brown car. Green Beret major, was found gave chase and fired several shots, killing Greenberg. They said he had slashed her wrists, her blouse and bra wrapped around her neck and her jeans in place but unbuttoned.

They said Arizona Highway Patrolman James Lee Keeton, Atascadero State Hospital, a 27, responding to a bulletin

For Suez Pullback

Pressure Mounts on Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Israeli troops from the Suez Canal. The Middle East cease-fire entered its second extension today as pressure increased on Israel to comply with an Egyptian proposal for a partial pullback. Meir's government would deadlock indirect peace negotiations being conducted by mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Diplomatic sources said France and the Soviet Union were pressing hard for acceptance. The withdrawal was a condition set Thursday by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt for reopening the Suez, closed since the 1967 war when Israel occupied the Sinai Desert to the canal's banks.

Mrs. Meir did not reject the plan in a taped American television interview Friday, but she said she didn't know "why Sadat thinks that the opening of the canal is something he is giving to us."

Israel would like the waterway reopened with "only one little condition," she said: "If the canal is opened, it should be opened also to Israeli shipping."

In his speech announcing Egypt's agreement to a one-month truce extension, Sadat made no specific reference to use of the canal by Israeli ships. But since it has controlled the waterway, Egypt never has permitted Israeli craft to use it.

The position of Egypt after the 1967 war with Israel was that the canal would not be reopened until all Israeli troops were withdrawn from the entire Sinai.

The 100-mile-long strip of water linking the Red Sea to the Mediterranean is blocked by ships sunk during the six-day war. Experts estimated today it could be opened to navigation in less than six months.

Sources in Jerusalem said Mrs. Meir held private meetings Friday with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Deputy Premier Yigal Alon. Cabinet ministers were silent about Sadat's proposals.

In Washington, State Department officials said the United States has told the Soviet Union, Britain and France it is prepared to discuss ways to guarantee a Middle East peace settlement. Egypt has said it would accept a truce guaranteed by Big Four troops after Israel withdrew from all Arab land it occupied during the 1967 war. But the Israelis are reluctant to accept such an arrangement.

saying their soldiers are better protectors of Israeli security than troops of other nations.

One purpose of the U.S. proposal for Big Four talks apparently is to avoid periodic threats to the truce, which began last August and was extended before for three months. Washington wants an indefinite cease-fire along the Suez and the Jordan River.

The Israeli military command reported today that its troops killed three Arab guerrillas in northern Israel a few days ago. Two infiltrators were captured, a spokesman said.

The command said the battle occurred about 42 miles south of the Dead Sea just northwest of the paramilitary kibbutz Nahal Zofar. Weapons, ammunition and sabotage material were found on the bodies, the spokesman said.

A newspaper in Tehran, meanwhile, reported that one of two men who attempted to board a Kuwait-bound Iran Airlines plane was arrested Friday night. Both men allegedly were members of the Al Fatah guerrilla organization, said the Khaban International.

Victory Premature

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Seventeen-year-old football player Norman Wessels may not rule as Hilo High School's homecoming queen after all.

Wessels, who entered the queen contest as a joke with the backing of some of his schoolmates, swept by five female contestants in the balloting. But a number of irate students and adults protested Friday over his victory.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Freeman City Hall Reporter

ITEM: COUNCIL APPROVES $2,300 FOR LIBRARY — Alderman Ed Norton explained the city's apparent turn about on the library fund by saying that the seriousness of the situation had been misunderstood when the library trustees originally asked for the money.

Norton, the Finance Committee Chairman, was being quite honest about the whole thing. Neither the Council nor the mayor understood the seriousness of the situation, on two counts.

Money was the least of the problem from where the politicians stood. After all, what's $10,000 (what the library originally asked for) in a $5.8 million budget?

Things got serious when the aldermen started getting phone calls and letters to the editor started popping up in The Freeman protesting the city's failure to adequately fund the library.

The protests reached a crescendo with the announcement that the children's library would have to be closed due to lack of funds. It then became a very serious matter for the aldermen and the city administration. The aldermen can vote against a lot of things and get away with it but when they vote against kids they're in trouble.

On the other hand, Alderman John Heitzman's point that there is a limit to city resources and that the library should begin to help itself more is well taken. The library trustees must think so, too. They're starting a fund drive this month.

BID CITY — Some officials tend to shy away from budgetary estimates on construction projects either before or after the bids are in. Remember, the uptown parking garage came in about a million dollars over the well publicized estimates from the urban renewal agency.

Various officials handle it various ways: Ira Shaw of the school board was quite concise when we asked him what the budgetary figure for School No. 7 was after the bids came in at around $390,000. Shaw fired off a brisk no comment.

Jim Connors of the urban renewal agency has been burnt by bidders before. When asked about the figure on the reconstruction of streets uptown, Connors started off by saying that the agency had always put out the figures in the past, evolved into his handgrip look and eventually died out mumbled in his beard something about high bids and low budgets.

We got the impression that what Connors was trying to tell us was that if he put out the budget figures on the project any bidders that might have been below those figures would come up to them.

Maybe. But we think the opposite is more often true. If a guy wants the job and he's high, he'll come down as close to the budget figure as possible knowing that there's probably a limit to what the agency can pay over that figure.

CITY BITS—It's beginning to get to that time of year where rumors start to flow about potential candidates for the fall elections.

City Legislator Mel Mones, of course, is mentioned for mayor against Koenig. We tend to doubt that one, though. Mones, we think, likes it out on the county where he's beginning to pick up some seniority.

Bob Gallo looks good for another term as alderman-at-large with not much word from the opposition.

Down in the wards, 12 of the 13 aldermen should be looking for another term, with the 13th, John Heitzman of the First Ward out due to moving from the ward. We hear that Mike Johnson, the guy who ran for county treasurer on the Democratic ticket last fall, may be interested in the Democratic nomination for alderman in the First Ward.

There were some mumbles out of the fourth Ward, Flo Ludlow's domain, that Eddie Arace, president of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association, was looking for the Republican nomination against Mrs. Ludlow.

Arace now tells us that he has absolutely no intention of running against Flo. He's more interested in building up the businessmen's association, he says.

Flo may have more trouble from Democrats than Republicans this year. Word is that there's still hard feelings around city hall about her vote against the budget.

Over in the Seventh Ward Republicans are lining up, we hear, for a chance at Mike Perry, the incumbent Democrat. The GOP seems to think Perry is a pushover. Hard to say, though. He did get elected twice. He must be doing something right . . . at least around election time.

Moving Drama of an Anxious Family's Struggle

RUSSELL KRUEGER as Sonny (L) shakes hands with John Alecca as Diane Kuba looks on. The boys meet in the doorway of an Oklahoma home in this scene from "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," the William Inge play now in rehearsal by Kingston's own Coach House Players.

SUDDENLY JOBLESS in the years just prior to the stock market crash, Sam Tesoriero as the husband in the Inge drama tells his wife he's leaving. Nina Werbalowsky as Cora, the wife, urges him to spend more time at home. The play was penned from Inge's own childhood memories.

HARRY SOMMER looks every inch the hen-pecked husband in this confrontation with his overly-talkative wife, played by Julia Callahan. Scene is from "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," being readied by Coach House for performances here in Kingston on Feb. 25, 26 and 27.

Out of Old Memories Comes 'Serio-Comic' Tale of Early '20s

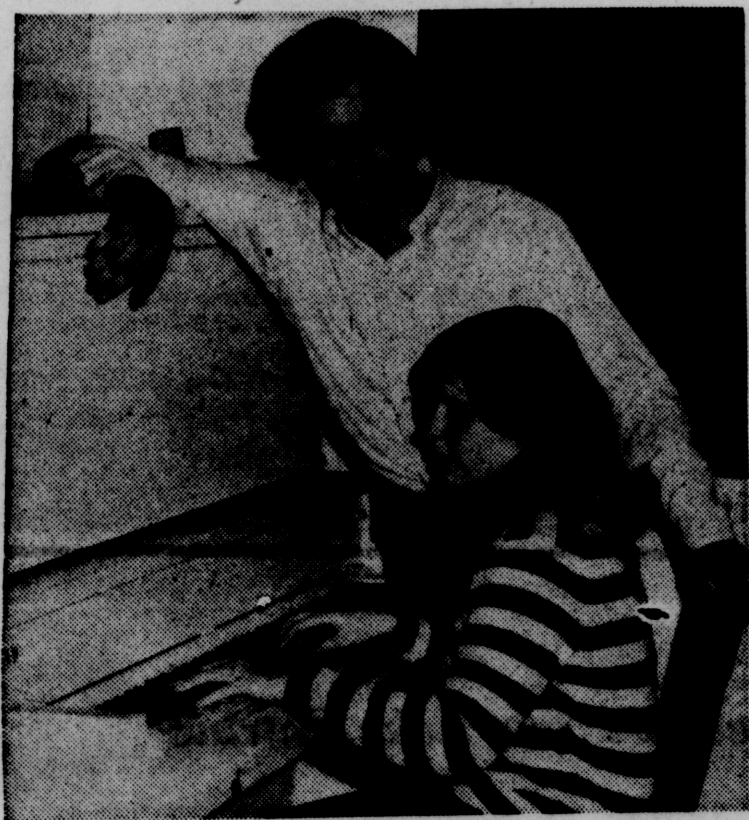

At the top of the month's entertainment news is the fact that Coach House Players will present the William Inge hit, "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," at J. Watson Bailey School the evenings of Feb. 25, 26 and 27. As always, proceeds received from Coach House shows will go toward the annual scholarship given by Coach House to an area high school senior who shows proficiency in one of the Arts.

Brooks Atkinson, former drama critic for the New York Times, said of this play, "Inge's finest play . . . this easygoing sketch of ordinary people stops long enough to make some stunning revelations about the private lives of husbands, wives, sisters and children. Not scandalous revelations: just quick and poignant glances into the privacy of hearts and souls."

Essentially, the play concerns the threatened break up of a brash harness salesman and his sensitive wife in the Oklahoma of the early 1920's—after some 17 years of marriage and the effect this problem has on their teenage daughter and son.

Tickets for the show will be on sale at the J. Watson Bailey School the evenings of Feb. 22, 23 and 24 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Although tickets will also be on sale at the door the nights of the show, Coach House advises that for best choice of seats, tickets should be obtained prior to showtime.

MARY MARSHALL as the daughter of a family faced with the problem of a precarious livelihood, plays the piano, while Frank Marquette as her youthful cadet swain listens. As members of the cast of "Stairs," they're rehearsing for this month's opening of the serio-comic play at J. Watson Bailey School here.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, boys are known for throwing tantrums. Russell Krueger as Sonny, the son of the family in "Stairs" (R) throws one in this rehearsal scene. MEMBERS OF KINGSTON BLACK ARTS THEATRE rehearse poetry reading program they'll perform in Ellenville as their creative contribution to Black History Week. From left to right, talented quartet includes Rene Van Dyke, Robert Hatcher, Mary Washington and Don Epperson, theatrical director of the newly organized Black Arts Theatre here.

RONNIE ROBINSON (L) executive director of the Black Arts Theatre — now in full swing at its new home on Wurts Street — checks out a publicity item for Black History Week with the Rev. George W. Baker, pastor of St. Mark's A.M.E. Church. Fast paced schedule for celebrating the week here in Ulster County calls for a program each night.

Ready for Big Week of Black History

At a theatre conference held not long ago, critic after critic from the United States and Europe paraded to the rostrum to announce the death of the theatre. Then an African delegate got up and said, "If you think your theatre is dying, you ought to come and see ours," by which he meant that it wasn't even properly alive yet.

The point would seem to be that for all the problems of the American theatre, there are enormous opportunities. Realizing this, a talented group of black people here in Kingston have taken the opportunity to develop their talents and present their work by forming the new Black Arts Theatre.

Ronnie Robinson, executive director of the theatre, knows exactly what his group can and will provide.

"As the only working Black Arts Theatre in this area," he says, "we want to bring to the attention of the people of Ulster County the accomplishments of black people in the fields of literature, art, theatre, poetry and music. And in the doing, we'll be giving black people a chance to express themselves and develop their talent."

Robinson knows that the Kingston area is possessed of "lots of black talents—some of them really dynamite," and he sees the fledgling Black Arts Theatre as a place to work, as well as a place for them "to be somebody."

In its building at 72 Wurts Street, the theatre is kept open 24 hours around the clock in an effort to get those involved used to talking over their aims and problems and using their talents to advantage. The result, Robinson feels, will be an opportunity "to get a better understanding of ourselves, leading to a better understanding between black and white."

Vinnette Carroll, the talented black woman who heads the multiracial Urban Arts Corps, once expressed similar feelings. "To the extent we like ourselves," she said, "we are able to express the things that are us. To that extent we're addressing each other. But so many of our experiences are universal that I really think we're addressing other people, too."

Just how universal those experiences are will be made evident when the Ulster County Association for Black History combines its forces to celebrate Black History Week here from Feb. 7-13. Composing the County Association are such organizations as the NAACP, the Woodstock Artists Association, Kingston Black Arts Theatre, various Kingston churches, the local Commission on Human Rights, Ellenville's The Brotherhood (a multiracial group), and USO (United Soul Organization), also of Ellenville.

The week promises to offer unprecedented identification with black contributions to the history and culture of this country. Each night will be highlighted with a special program pointing up the artistic significance of the black heritage.

Kicking off the vigorous week of programming will be an interesting lecture by Edward Taylor, trustee of the Schamberg Collection of Harlem, known as the largest and best

RIVERVIEW BAPTIST CHURCH choir singers Frances Gilmore and Ella Lindsey are robed and ready to add their voices to the major musical program being planned for Black History Week. With a host of others, they'll join the combined choir of the black churches in Kingston for a special service and concert Friday night at St. Mark's Church.

AFRO-AMERICAN CLUB members at Kingston High School are planning their own program as part of Black History Week. Among those appearing in a special Wednesday night presentation (standing L-R) are Vicky Costello, Pam Kitchener and Grace Fitzgerald, and (seated) Dianne Newton and Gregory Harris. BARBARA BRITTON (L) and Tracy Brooks Swope as her teen-age daughter, in a scene from the Broadway comedy hit "FORTY CARATS." It's one of two great comedies headed our way; will be brought to the stage of the Community here by the American Theatre League on March 10.

LARRY PARKS and Betty Garrett, the husband-and-wife acting team, who are co-starring in Neil Simon's smash Broadway comedy hit, "PLAZA SUITE." Considered the author's funniest play, it arrives at the Community on April 12 as one of three full-scale Broadway roadshows set for the winter-spring season.

Coming to Kingston— 3 Broadway Roadshows

Mail and phone reservations have been pouring in at such a fast clip that all indications point to a sell-out for the three Broadway roadshows booked for the Community Theatre here from March through May.

That alone is news in itself since the first show is not due to arrive for almost a month (on March 10), and the last in the series will not play here until well into May — on the 17th.

Small wonder, though, that tickets are fast becoming at a premium. For what's in store for area audiences is the greatest selection of Broadway successes on tour in recent years. All full-scale Broadway roadshows, the series boasts one great musical hit and two smash comedies. And all three shows are being offered at generous discount by producer Robert D. Hadley, who's bringing them in under the auspices of the prestigious American Theatre League, Inc.

First to arrive will be Forty Carats, the uproarious show that opened on Broadway in late 1968 and immediately became the critics' choice. The breezy hit came from the pens of Barillet and Gredy, authors of that other comedy smash, "Cactus Flower." For two years it ran on Broadway, with Julie Harris, June Allison and Zsa Zsa Gabor succeeding each other in the starring role.

The Kingston production, set for Wednesday, March 10 at 8:30 p.m., will star Barbara Britton and 10 other performers, including Robert Darnell, Nancy Cushman, and Hugh Reilly. Miss Britton, who has acted in movies opposite such stars as John Wayne, Bob Hope, William Holden, Ray Milland, Gary Cooper, Ronald Colman and Robert Stack, scored in the films "Reap the Wild Wind," "Wake Island," "The Fleet's In" and others. She also became a popular favorite with TV viewers as the distaff half on the "Mr. and Mrs. North" series.

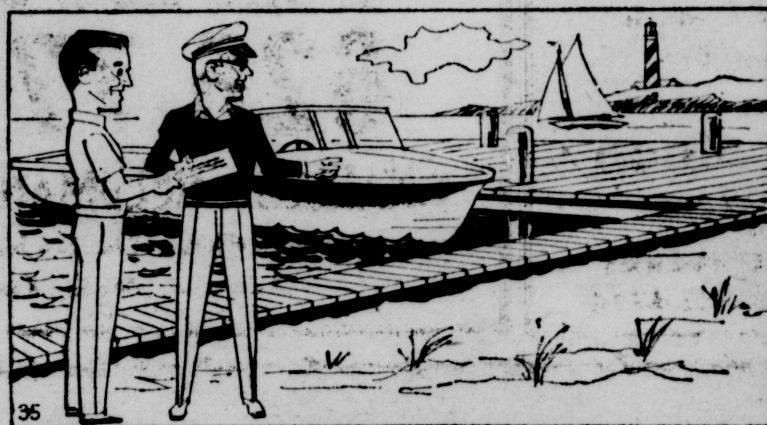

here has often been called the Greek version of "Fiddler on the Roof." It's the sunny and tuneful musical, Zorba, and it rounds out the season's series on May 17 at 8:30 p.m.

The inimitable Vivian Blaine will co-star with Michael Kermoyan in the American Theatre League version coming to Kingston. By turns earthy, tender, bawdy and colorful, "Zorba" is an absorbing musical tale that unfolds in a Greek cabaret and flashes back to early '20s events in Piraeus, Athens and Crete. Filled with zestful songs, it was first seen in New York in the fall of 1968.

The touring version slated here not only boasts Vivian Blaine (The brightest doll of "Guys and Dolls"), but a wealth of ebullient dances and evocative scenery. As the sad-but-comic, fading French woman of the stage musical, Miss Blaine magnetizes the attention of Kermoyan, whose soaring baritone voice shakes the rafters as the lusty vagabond of the title.

So-o-o, with a sell-out looming, better order your tickets and reserve choice seats all season as a three-show member. Contact the Community by phone or mail (ask for manager Marge Thomas) and get tickets for all three shows at prices ranging from $19.90 in orchestra and loge and $16.90 in rear orchestra, to $13.90 and $9.90 for lower and upper balcony.

Watercolors and Oils From Pacific Climes

The work of Ida Geyler Tollenger, widely traveled Phoenicia artist, is currently on display at Rexmore Gallery, Ruray Supplementary Educational Center, Stamford.

The show features a wide variety of work by Artist Tollenger, including watercolors and oil paintings, serigraphs, pencil sketches and felt pen drawings. All depict scenes in Thailand, where she spent a lengthy period of time, and in Hawaii, where she was an instructor at the Hawaiian Windward Artists Guild, and others which might remind anyone of his own town.

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mrs. Tollenger studied at both the University of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Art Academy before going on to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Her background includes a career as a free-lance artist in accepted by Nitten, the largest Cincinnati and New York City, Japanese National Exhibition as well as work as a designer, which is held at the National printmaker, illustrator and ad-Gallery in Ueno Park, Tokyo. ## Bardian Dancers Perform in N. Y.

Albert Reid, instructor in dance at Bard College, also a former Cunningham dancer, and presently on the teaching staff at the Merce Cunningham School in New York City, has engaged a group of 15 dancing Bardians in performing two of his choreographed pieces during the current college Winter Field Period.

The two works, entitled Minus Eros and Eclipse, have both seen performance on the Bard stage; were included in one of the college's "usual" dance concerts. Last week, they were scheduled for performance at the Cubiculo Theatre, West 51st Street, New York City, for three nights.

The Cubiculo is available to certain choreographers for use free of charge provided an entire production is intact technically and ready to go. Arrangements of this type were made with the theatre last year during Field Period when Aileen Passloff, who also teaches at Bard, brought her piece entitled Moving Day to the Cubiculo. Reid's two works total close to one hour combined, and afforded his dancers a fine opportunity on the professional stage along with Field Period credit at Bard, and the honor of having the work of one of their favorite instructors produced in Manhattan.

DON'T MISS OUT!

FOLKSINGER POLLY ADAMS is a newcomer to the group of singers, dancers and musicians from all parts of the globe who compose the "Around the World in Ninety Minutes" troupe. And, as such, she adds a spark of gaiety to the always exciting show.

HIROKO FURUSAWA of Tokyo, graduated from Toho Gakuen, the famous Institute of Music in Japan. She also studied Voice at Washington University in St. Louis on a Fulbright Scholarship; is now attending Juilliard School of Music and is a highlight performer in "90 Minutes."

Vibrant Group of Global Artists Featured in a Fast-Moving Revue

A roster of international visitors is coming to Saugerties to perform in the musical production, "Around the World in 90 Minutes." The fast-moving and irresistible potpourri of entertainment, combining operatic arias, gay folk songs, graceful ballet, rhythmic modern dance, piano solos and exciting ethnic dances, will be presented Saturday, Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Saugerties High School auditorium.

The exceptionally well-balanced program — providing a bright and exhilarating evening — is being sponsored by the Saugerties Jaycees. Wearing the costumes of their native lands, a host of talented artists will create an atmosphere of professionalism that blends into an excellent show.

Every act is delight and the entire presentation has indeed delighted audiences from Canada to Puerto Rico. This is a show that never fails to please, and if you have seen earlier productions — rest assured that this year's whirlwind tour of the world will not be the same show you've enjoyed before. The 1971 version has added many bright newcomers to the cast, while retaining some of the last year's talents in new program presentations.

Blending Heritage
Proud of their heritage and abilities, these global performers from New York City's International House, promise yet another outstanding cultural event for our area. And they bring the best in entertainment from such places as Taiwan, Hawaii, the United States, East Pakistan, Cuba, Peru, India and elsewhere.

Here's an excellent show for the whole family — seen by families everywhere on stage and on TV — and it comes to Saugerties backed by the highest recommendations possible.

Take a trip around the world with your family on Feb. 20 by picking up tickets now at Abrams Music Store or Kingston Music Center in Kingston; P.C. Smith in Saugerties; and Sound, Inc., in Woodstock.

Lincoln Work Takes 'Smallest' Title From Omar

Lincoln admirers who plan to celebrate the President's birthday by reading his Gettysburg Address can think small this year.

The text of the famous speech fills one of the world's smallest books. A copy of the 11-page volume, measuring just 11/64 inches square recently was acquired by the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C.

Described as a miracle of typography, printing, and binding, the minute masterpiece was produced in Japan by a micro-printing process using an ultra-high resolution lens to take a camera proof of a photo-type-set original. It has been placed in the Library's collection of more than 1,000 miniature books.

In Many Languages

Mini-books have been popular in many countries for centuries, the National Geographic Society tells TEMPO. The Library card catalogue lists works in almost every major language, including an Arabic manuscript of the Koran.

As early as the 15th century, members of religious orders carried tiny volumes in their rucksacks as they trudged around the countryside ministering to the faithful. The Thesaurus Spirituale, printed in 1500, measured only two inches high.

"As books of ready reference, they seem to have served as constant companions to the devout," explains Dr. Frederick R. Goff, chief of the Library's Rare Book Room.

"Their very practicality may have influenced the creation and production of the traveling libraries of small volumes which were to become prevalent in later centuries."

The oldest American miniature in the Library's collection is a "Thumb" Bible published in 1765. Popular in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, the books attracted children with their size—about two inches high—and illustrations.

Advice to Lovelorn

Works that carried a secular message were also popular. The History of Goody Two Shoes in the 1800's included "the best recipe ever given to a married couple to live in peace:

"You must solemnly agree that if one speaks an angry word, the other will not answer till he or she has distinctly called over all the letters in the alphabet, and that the other shall not reply till he or she told twenty; by these means your passion will be stifled and reason will have time to take the rule."

Other minis took a whimsical look at nature. The Aeolian Harp or Songsters Cabinet overheard this conversation: "Said a pot of strong beer, To some beef that was near, And foam'd like a bull in warm weather, In truth it is queer and strange doth appear, That we should both be together."

Only the classics, however, have approached the religious Khayyam. Somebody once fitted books in popularity, Shakespeare especially. One 30-volume collection of the Bard's works—each tome measures 2 x 1.5 inches—reposes in a two-tiered, revolving bookcase five inches high. Until the Lincoln work was published, the smallest in the Library was a classic—The Rose Garden of Omar Khayyam, a translation of verses from the Ruba'iyat of Omar Khayyam. Somebody once fitted 24 of the works into a thimble.

OCCC to Stage Broadway's Luv

An all-student production of the Broadway hit "Luv" will be staged at Orange County Community College on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12 and 13.

Curtain time will be 8:30 each night in the Orange Hall theater on the Middletown campus for the comedy which starred Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson, and Alan Arkin in its New York City run.

OCCC sophomore Fred Ras-kopf of Warwick will play the Wallach role, and Anita Colle of Highland Falls will play the female lead. The Arkin role will be played by Alan Wolfzahn of Forest Hills, N.Y.

Admission to "Luv" will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

New Series for Joe

Versatile Joe Garagiola will be host of a new weekly entertainment game series bearing his name that NBC will introduce Feb. 15 in the 1:30-2 p.m. slot. It replaces "Words and Music."

THE PERILOUS SPORT of motorcycle racing and the unusual breed who risk their lives at it is explored in "Little Fauss and Big Halsy," starring Robert Redford and Michael J. Pollard. Filmed in Panavision and color, the movie is the current attraction at Kingston's Community.

MOVIES

Little Fauss And Big Halsy

This one we thoroughly enjoyed. An artfully done film about the sport of professional motorcycle racing, it examines the lives of the unusual breed of men dedicated to risking their necks in the most perilous and pell-mell of sports.

The title characters (played by Michael J. Pollard and Robert Redford respectively) are cycle racers of little grace and much incompetence. They are close to comical as they try to cope with the uncertain world of small-time racing, endurance runs and hill climbs.

The film goes behind the scenes to explore the motives which produce the men who take to the tracks around the U.S. And so well does it explore that a viewer often feels the dust in his throat and imagines the smell of half-fried hamburgers and the odor of lukewarm beer.

A Shy 'Tuner'

Pollard (remembered as the chauffeur of "Bonnie and Clyde") is Little Fauss, a mechanic who yearns to be a racer but lacks the ability to push himself into competition. He possesses none of the amenities, is shy, inarticulate and childish.

Redford (forsaking his "Sundance Kid" horse for a motor bike) is Big Halsy, a skagging hustler with a certain talent for racing. He loses more than he wins, however, either because of his temper or a faulty cycle he neglected to check out properly. As much con man and liar as racer, he will never be a great rider.

As it unreeled currently at Kingston's Community, "Fauss-Halsy" is a fine, tough, funny film—bolstered by strong acting. It also takes a hard look at the national obsession with winning as it follows stunt riders and bike packs on the tracks of southern and northern California and in Arizona. Halsy and Fauss are living parodies of the success kick, but they will always be among those who make no significant mark nor leave a permanent trace—and they will never be among those showered with racing and sponsorship offers.

The Owl and The Pussycat

There probably is not a single movie-goer in the U.S. today, or radio listener or TV viewer, who is not aware of Barbra Streisand's spectacular way with a song, or with her flair for comedy.

In "The Owl and the Pussycat," now showing at Kingston's Mayfair, she follows the straight and narrow road of an actress alone. It is her first non-singing role.

As "the pussycat" of the film's title, she plays a zany would-be actress and part-time hooker. Early on she becomes romantically involved with George Segal, cast as "the owl"—a timid book store clerk who spends his spare time writing flamboyant novels nobody wants to publish.

Off-Beat Backgrounds

The plot is not new, since films about happy-go-lucky, life-loving prostitutes and shy, bumbling intellectuals have come out of Hollywood on other occasions. Still, it's a movie that manages to appeal for its light entertainment value. Much of the comedy was filmed in off-beat locations around Manhattan, giving viewers a look at the New York 'most visitors to that city never come in contact with. Book stores, cafeterias, nightclubs, theatres and pawn shops vie for the eye along with Lincoln Center, Central Park, industrial skyscrapers and Greenwich Village's New School for Social Research.

Miss Streisand does well by her role of a girl eminently capable of handling almost any situation that might come up in her New York milieu, from the advances of a dress shop proprietor to the resentments which naturally arise when she's knocking herself out as a go-go dancer in a saloon whose patrons are absorbed in a ball game on TV.

Segal is very, very good in his role, and with inventiveness and humor established himself as one of our finest character actors.

The script has a fair share of laughs and, before it's over, the hooker and the intellectual have managed to teach one another quite a bit in spite of the differences in their backgrounds and perspectives. An added attraction for some will be the fact that Blood, Sweat & Tears, one of the top pop music groups in the country, performs the music heard on the film's soundtrack.

BARBRA STREISAND makes an entrance to the music of the popular rock group, Blood, Sweat & Tears, in "The Owl and the Pussycat." George Segal co-stars in the comedy as a timid book store clerk romantically involved with the zany Miss Streisand. "Owl" is now on screen at Kingston's Mayfair.

Special Tony Format
This year's telecast of the Broadway Theater's Tony Awards will be on the ABC network from 9 to 11 p.m. March 28. The ceremonies will come from the stage of New York's Palace Theater. Because this will be the 25th anniversary of the awards, producer Alexander H. Cohen is arranging that the entertainment will consist of highlights of the musical stage during that quarter of a century instead of excerpts from current musicals nominated for the contest.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Believe it or not, there were between 800-900 feet ticklin' their bottoms on Coleman School's auditorium-dance floor at Parents' Association's annual winter dance last Saturday night. And that's a lot o' ticklin'!

A sell-out long before ticket-deadline, fire restrictions forced committee to draw line on many reservation requests.

Guest-list read "LIKE" Who's Who. (What d'you want—good grammar or the facts?) In general, there were teachers, dentists, IBMers by carload, principals, professionals, politicians. In particular, there were the Bernie Feeney Jrs., Pete Mancuso and Virginia, Wendell (Speed) Scherer and little woman, the Tony Pizzarelis, Sharon and Jack Finch, Frank and Julie Simpson, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Tomaselli, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Scholar, John and Betty Heitzmann, Mike and Marietta Carpino, AND Judge Frank Tucker, Judge Joseph D. Saccoman, Judge George Beck. (When certain gent remarked, "Here comes the judge," his mate quizzed "Which one?")

And that's just skimming small part of the "cream." Another part included acting-police chief Julius Glassman and Theresa, the Mike Larkins, Carl Janalewicz, Gloria and Frank Casciaro, Mr. and Mrs. John Augustine, Gloria and Ray Myers, the Mayor and Marilyn, Betty and Gene Radell, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Farrell, John and Rose Porsch, the Jim Gallaghers of Central Hudson, not to be confused with the Tom Gallaghers who deal in "underground novelties," otherwise known as caskets. (However, they were there, too.)

Ray Stepski, president of White Eagle Benevolent Society, represented his group and led a couple hundred Paul Jones' buffs around hectic dance arena. Ray was accompanied by host of Polish sportsmen, "ski-ers," if you know what we mean. Mrs. Tony Bell looked especially sharp with flattering hairdo. However, not to be outdone by his missus, Tony's locks were specially styled, too, courtesy of Chil Caruso.

Pantsuits and jumpsuits bounced about all over the place. Mrs. Edgar (Kay) Maurer was havin' deuce of time tryin' to keep bottom-half of ensemble from fallin'. Of course, it could be that Kay—like most other Mitzi Gaynors—danced so much those swayin' hips just shrunk in size. But to music by Howard Rust Orchestra, what a way to shrink!

At midnight, guys and gals formed several bread lines to tasty buffet. There was ham and beef, salads and cheese, rolls and relishes AND at table 17, there was also dessert. Seems Irma Argulewicz, wife of fireman Frank, always brings cake from home to treat her particular group. No wonder Irma's table is among first-to-fill.

Tho' there were grandmas and grandpas, as well as moms and dads, we kid you not, they all came like Gang Busters. (Committee members take a bow!) All in all, "Winter Wonderland" gala made one thing for sure: Coleman parents'll soon be plannin' wonderlands in three other seasons. On that, you can bet your little Swiss portable!

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

WAS BARNUM RIGHT?

Sometimes I almost believe that the public really yearns to be fooled; that happens whenever someone tells me: "You know, Ernie, I'd like to eat at ROBERTO'S, but your prices are high." I nailed one the other day on that statement. "Gimme a frinstance," I challenged. "Well, I'm a fish eater, and your Fillet of Sole Dinner is $5.50; I can get it at So-and-So's for $4.25." "Do you get a Cocktail of your choice with it?" I asked. "No." "Do you get Escargots, or Baked Clams, or a Shrimp Cocktail with it?" "No, that's about $1.50 extra." "Do you get Rum Cake or Coupe Marrons for Dessert?" "No, that's extra, too." "Well, if you had the Drink and the Shrimp Cocktail and the Coupe Marrons, how much would your check be?" "I guess about $7.50 or so."

As my mathematics teacher used to say: "Q.E.D." which means, as I understand it, "Do I have to go any further?" The figures speak for themselves . . . and that holds good for every dinner on our menu. This being the case, I have to figure that people who compare prices without comparing what they get for their money either can't add or just like to be flim-flammed. Now, on to pleasanter topics, such as seeing who was recently at ROBERTO'S. To start with, over at that festive table in the corner, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Otto and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raible were celebrating Mrs. Otto's birthday. As to which one, dependent (Charles Raible) states only that it was over 39; I'm sure Mrs. Otto won't mind his giving away such a secret, because Mr. Raible is a discerning man of good taste; I know, because he commented that the "atmosphere, drinks and food were excellent, coupled with extremely fine, courteous service." You've just got to admire a man who can say things like that! . . . Another birthday celebration, for Mrs. Mary Dempsey, included her daughter Elaine, and nieces Nancy Griggs and Catherine Corcoran. . . . Another Port Even Celebration of note was a close-knit group celebrating the 34th Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Henry; the party included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry (their son and daughter-in-law) . . . AND Mrs. Catherine Perry, who just happened to have been the Maid of Honor at the wedding! A little soft music on the Hammond, Mark, while we sing "Memories,"

• • • Another Anniversary (ask Dom or Lil which one; they forgot to tell me) for Dom and Lil Perry, of Kingston; their guests were Don and Babe Winan of Catskill. By the way, Dom, when you commented "Beautiful (Everything)" . . . were you referring to the Dinner, the Wedding, or what? . . . How's this for a candid note from a satisfied couple? Mr. and Mrs. John Campola, of Ulster Park wrote how they happened to dine with us: "By accident! Took a left turn toward the river, and hit a place called ROBERTO'S. Stopped to eat and drink. Great! Recommend it highly." Well, if that's a way of attracting such nice people, I'll add to our sign: Dew Drop Inn . . . and I don't mean the river. . . . The old ego is further boosted by the comment of Arthur Sottile, who wrote: "Fun at any restaurant is really made by the people who are there. ROBERTO'S to me means Fun and a Good Time because the right people are there; add the excellent food and drink, and the combination makes for a happy evening." Thanks, Arthur; and that gives me the cue for my weekly report on the County's Happiest Evening . . . Saturday Night in The Lounge. In addition to the singing of Ed Shannon, Angie, Vic, Fran, Tony "Red" Amato (and Papa Joe's fancy stepping), Emceeing (and also singing) again was Jack Turk. All this to the happy-making Hammond of Mark Garrison . . . who had his brother John back with his Electric Guitar. Incidentally, Mark appears both Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday he plays Dinner Music from 8 to 10 . . . and from 10 until . . . ? It's "Clown Around Night." Sunday he's on from 3 to 8 p.m., for the Dinner Scene . . . ready for all requests. . . . I'm happy to report that the absence of George and Martha and The Scullys the other Sunday has been explained . . . they had to go to a Church Dinner that night. Now, how can I fault them for that? They admit, however, that it wasn't exactly the same as at ROBERTO'S. . . . Dagnabbit . . . every time I get really warmed up on this "colyum" stint, somebody wants me to attend to some business. See you next week.

Ernie

WAA's Expanded Program

An outstanding exhibition was unveiled at the Woodstock Art Gallery on Saturday, Jan. 30. The first show in an expanded program of the Woodstock Artists Association, made possible by partial funding from the New York State Council of the Arts, its was hailed by several hundred viewers; an unprecedented number for a January event. Among those attending was Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, the day's guest of honor.

Michael Densen, one of the four artists featured in the exhibition, proves himself a young man of rare abilities. His diamond-shaped canvases with their carefully controlled technique and dark-hued palette are veritable show-stoppers. His landscapes are studies in poetic sensibility and sophisticated perception.

Several of 19-year-old Gary Hill's sculptural constructions fuse long strips of flexible lead with denser metal into aerial mobiles which float like strange winged birds of outer space. A huge wheel, in which two figures are entwined in loosely coiled fragile strands of wire, is another fine work by this very young and imaginative artist.

Colorful Designs

The multiple designs of Russell Smith are witty and colorful. Pie In The Sky and Pres Cooker, among several paintings, are especially amusing.

Michael O'Brien's brass constructions bear evidence of high skilled technique in this medium.

The present show at the Woodstock Gallery is an excellent one and should not be missed. It proves conclusively that there is no paucity of art and no lack of quality in the work being turned out by young people today.

A totally eye-catching exhibition, it will remain on view through Feb. 9. Gallery hours for the show are 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, and 3 to 5 p.m. Weekdays.

Following the current show into the WAA gallery will be a display of the work of area high school students, slated to open Friday, Feb. 12.

An 'Indian' Lecture For a Winter's Day

The internationally known Indian scholar, Dr. Amiya Chakravarty, will speak at Bennett College, Millbrook, next Tuesday (Feb. 9) on "India as a Bridge Between East and West." Dr. Chakravarty's lecture, which is a part of Bennett's East-West Studies course, will be open to the public. It is to be given in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Dr. Chakravarty, who has been professor of philosophy at the State University College at

New Paltz since 1967, recently was named to the rank of university professor by the chancellor and trustees of SUNY. This honor is given only to eminent scholars who attain the highest academic and professional excellence and whose achievements are of national or international significance.

Besides having a long and distinguished academic career, Dr. Chakravarty has had the distinction of working closely with Mahatma Gandhi and Rabin-drath Tagore and of being an intimate acquaintance of many persons eminent in religion, philosophy, and literature, including Albert Schweitzer, Boris Pasternak, and Thomas Merton. Winning his MA in philosophy and literature at Patna University, Dr. Chakravarty was the first Asian named a senior research fellow at Oxford University, from which he earned his doctorate in 1937. He subsequently taught at Forman Christian College in Lahore and at Calcutta University and in 1948 came to the United States as professor of religion at Howard University. He has since taught at the Universities of Kansas and Michigan and at Yale and Boston Universities and has been visiting professor and guest lecturer at many other institutions in the United States and India.

He has been an official adviser to the Indian delegation to the United Nations and several times a delegate to UNESCO.

He has published extensively in Bengali and English, and his honors, which include several fellowships and honorary degrees, are almost as extensive as the national and international conferences on religion, literature, and education in which he has taken a leading role.

Movies

Lovers and Other Strangers

This quaint new film has already played at length around the area — but if you missed it elsewhere — see it now at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. Its plot is a rarity these days in that the lovers of the title actually get married.

Produced by TV talkmaster David Susskind, it's a wonderful comedy winner. Two delightful newcomers, Michael Brandon and Bonnie Bedelia are cast as a couple of average New York kids who fall in love on their honeymoon. And get married. One of the best comedies yet about love, marriage and sex, and it's people with marvelous, middle-class Italian-Americans, who come across with joyful enthusiasm.

Diary of a Mad Housewife

On screen at both the Rosendale Theatre and Red Hook's Lyceum currently is this film about a young establishment marriage. It takes an acidly humorous look at a bright, attractive, well-educated, upward-mobile young couple. The problem is that their marriage is all surface and illusion with no true relationship or basic understanding.

Brilliant acting by newcomer Carrie Snodgrass as the wife highlights this movie, as does its attempt to explore the viability of a marriage that depends on the myth that the male is dominant. On another level, the story deals with the empty materialism that all too often replaces idealism.

Incidentally, this housewife is mad (angry) at her cretin husband, not mad (crazy) as in mentally unbalanced.

Joe

One of the year's 10 best films, this is a fascinating — well, actually, horrifying — attempt to get inside the hard hat head. With a brilliant and superlative performance by newcomer Peter Boyle as the "Joe" of the title, it comes across with all the fear and frustration of today.

As it unreels currently at the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties, it pits a blindly intolerant family man against what he sees as threatening forces.

Those would be "niggers on welfare and booze," social workers, "white kids acting like niggers," and liberals. He hates his son's motorcycle and the "colored" family that dared move into his lily-white Queens neighborhood, and he loves his collection of World War II weaponry.

A savage film, "Joe" is nevertheless of vast social and cinematic importance. Barbaric hate has never been so well presented on screen as it emerges through Joe Curran.

By TOBIE GERTSEEMA

Big Names for 'Shop'

Outstanding talent being recruited by ABC for the new children's series, "Curiosity Shop," scheduled for next season, includes Ray Bradbury, noted science fiction writer; George Pal, producer-director of numerous movies, and composer Henry Mancini, who will contribute the program's musical theme.

TV 'Charlie Chan'

Ross Martin, well-remembered as co-star of "The Wild, Wild West" video series, has been signed by Universal to play the title role in "Charlie Chan," a film designed for television use. It is hoped that this will result in a new video series about the famous fictional Chinese detective, long in the public eye via books, movies, radio and television.

AUTHOR FRANK LANGELLA and Carrie Snodgrass, who's married to Richard Benjamin, achieve compatibility in their clandestine tryst in "Diary of a Mad Housewife," the film based on a best-selling novel. Movie, about a modern young wife's infidelity, is now showing at both the Rosendale Theatre and the Lyceum in Red Hook.
